2d SECOND 2d ANNIVERSARY

Twenty-eight Complete Stores Under One Mammoth Roof.
A Most Important Event In Store History to Be Celebrated In Typical Golden Rule Fashion, Beginning Monday, By a

GREAT CELEBRATION SALE

An unprecedented underpricing of staple, seasonable merchandise. Two years in our present location and thirty-three years keeping faith with the public call for a fitting crown in celebration thereof. No celebration can be more in keeping with the reputation of this store than the series of sales which we inaugurate to-morrow, that our customers may long remember the second celebration sale and the thirty-third milestone of successful merchandising of the Golden Rule Store. In entering upon another year of history, the policy of the store will not be changed, as our prices will bear evidence of that. Our attractions will continue to be low prices. To-day's examples of the underpricing during the anniversary sale are typical, and every department is brimful of bargains without parallel.

As You Read To-day's Courier-Journal

Picture the thousands of others who, on the front porch, in the parlor, in the yard, in the train, at the breakfast-table, in the street car, are doing the same thing. Other eyes are reading this sentence at the identical instant that you are. All are reading the paper for the news. News from Europe, Asia and Africa and all other foreign lands, from Washington, from the world of sport, from fields of politics, drama and society, from armies and navies, from a former home or a future one, from capitals and hamlets, news of and for people, of business and money, with an abundance of pictures, miscellany and editorial comment—this is the news they find as the contents of a great, complete, progressive and modern newspaper.

But not the least of the news they read is that of the Seller and Buyer. In the crowded and teeming advertising columns is the precious information of how to make a dollar go furthest. The advertiser tells the man or woman who have to buy something where they can get the most for their money. This is news that makes money for the buyer by saving it. It is news with a cash value. A buyer can save many times the price of the paper by simply seizing a bargain opportunity which its advertising columns tell him about.

THE LATEST.

The Weather.
Forecast for Sunday and Monday:
Kentucky—Partly cloudy Sunday and Monday.
Tennessee—Partly cloudy Sunday and Monday.
Indiana—Fair Sunday and Monday.
Light to moderate, variable winds.

By agreement, no paragraphs of the tariff bill were voted on at yesterday's session of the Senate, the entire day being devoted to the consideration of the measure. Senator Bailey demanded frequent roll calls to determine whether or not there was a quorum. Senator McCumber precipitated the fight over the tariff bill, but several objections were made and an unanimous consent was required the proposal came to naught.

In an impassioned address, the Rev. J. L. Higgins, of Union City, Tenn., launched a campaign which resulted in raising of a legal fund of $10,000 at the session of the general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church at Bentonville, Ark. In the midst of the recording of pledges a telegram was read announcing that the Federal courts had refused to assume jurisdiction in the controversy now on in the Savannah and Greenfield, Tenn., presbyteries, and for several minutes the assembly was given over to cheering.

H. H. Rogers, a short time before his death, distributed a portion of his fortune among his four children. It is understood that he gave $40,000 each to his son, H. H. Rogers, Jr., and to his three daughters, Mrs. W. E. Benjamin, Mrs. Urban H. Broughton and Mrs. W. R. Cox. The remainder of his estate will be disposed of by his will.

The statement of the New York clearing-house banks for the past week shows that the banks held $19,919,775 more than the requirements of the 25 per cent reserve rule. This is an increase of $3,301,850 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with the previous week.

Robert Moore, a negro arrested on a charge of horse stealing, startled Abington, Va., with the confession that he murdered the young nephew of Mayor Hines, of that town. The youth had been missing a month when his partly decomposed body was found.

Rear Admiral Raymond P. Rogers, of the United States navy, sailed from New York yesterday on the steamer Lapland to inspect the various navy yards of Europe with a view to framing a report to Secretary Meyer, of the Navy Department.

A service in the memory of George Meredith, the novelist who died May 18, was held in Westminster Abbey yesterday and was attended by a large gathering of persons prominent in diplomatic, literary, political and artistic circles.

J. W. Carter, former superintendent of the Metropolitan Street Railway system at Kansas City and previously a resident of Chicago, committed suicide at Council Hill, Okla., by shooting.

The Florida House yesterday voted a $5,000 appropriation for a silver service for the battleship Florida, now under construction.

The ice blockade which had shut off the entrance to the harbor of St. John, N. F., for the past week was raised yesterday.

Here Are Quotations That Will Gladden the Heart of the Economical Woman

Black Silks For Less.

We bought these silks at a most opportune time and will save you money on every yard you buy.

- 70c Instead of $1.00 for beautiful black satin Messaline, of very close, smooth weave, perfect black and regular width. This silk will give exceptional wear and is recommended for many things.
- 75c Instead of $1.00 for 33-in. Black Taffeta, good black and all silk. No dope or tin in its construction. Will give dependable service.
- 98c Instead of $1.25 for the best 36-inch Black Taffeta ever offered. Perfect black and texture, guaranteed to give satisfactory wear. This cannot be equaled in value elsewhere.

Extra Special.

$1.69 Instead of $2.50 for Corded Rep. Silk full 36-in. wide, beautiful black, soft, smooth finish, especially adapted to separate coats so much in vogue. You cannot buy this any day but Monday.

Closing Out Wool and Silk Garments.

We find it necessary to close out all Spring Suits of Wool and Silk to make room for wash wearables. We have therefore, reduced them as follows:

- $8.95 For Suits Marked $15.00
- $15.00 For Suits Marked $19.75
- $18.75 For Suits Marked $25.00
- $5.95 For Beautifully Tailored White Unlined Serge Coat; most modestly cut.
- 98c For Combination Corset Covers and Drawers or Corset Covers and Short Skirt; made of soft-finished nainsook with hand-effect embroidery and ribbon heading.
- $1.50 For Princess Slip of white lawn with tucked ruffle at bottom and neck, trimmed with lace insertion, lace edge and ribbon heading. Very handsomely made.

Carpets and Curtains.

The housecleaning season makes demands for new floor coverings, curtains and upholstery, and the wise housekeeper comes to us to save money.

- 35c Each and up to $8.00 for Grass Matting Rugs, in all sizes and colors. This is the best rug for porches, bungalows and summer homes.
- 75c Pair for Ruffled Muslin Curtains, nicely made of good material. This is cheaper than the goods will cost if bought by the yard.
- $3.75 Pair for Irish Point and Net Curtains. The best to be had at this low price.
- $1.15 For Large-size Hemp Rope Hammocks; strongly made and of cozy comfortableness.

New Millinery Arrivals.

New imported Midsummer Hats are on view, and they are entrancingly lovely. There are exclusive things in chips, hair and Milan braids, elaborately trimmed in blossoms. Nothing could be more in harmony with the summer days than these hats, and you cannot get our models anywhere else for they are confined to us. This puts the wearer of one of these hats in a class by herself and renders her exclusive.

Redfern Whalebone Corsets.

It is almost impossible to find a genuine Whalebone Corset in any make but a Redfern, and when you wear a Redfern you know instantly that the boning is whalebone. It is so pliable, so wearable and withal so reliable, never losing its shape, always holding the figure easily, but with decided firmness.

A Redfern is shaped to build, or rather to reverse the usual shape, to form take on the corset shape, assuming long, unbroken lines, not curves. The figure is not conscious of the corset at the waist, except to know how comfortable it is. It is the hips and the back that are shaped. We can give you a Redfern that seems made for you, regardless of your size.

Prices $3.00 and Up.

COMMENT ON TAFT'S SPEECH.

Washington, May 22.—[Special.]—In a decision rendered today the Commissioner of Internal Revenue holds that liability for special tax is incurred at the place of delivery where goods are shipped with the privilege of retail before the payment. The commissioner received an inquiry relative to the shipment of liquors on trial into a district, no money being required until the goods were thoroughly tested, after which the consignee, if satisfied, remitted for the same, and if otherwise, returns the goods, less the quantity used, at the dealer's expense. The commissioner says in reply: "There is clearly no bona fide sale, and the goods do not become absolutely the property of the consignee until all spirits deposited in bonded warehouses are first gauged by a Government officer, is well-known to all purchasers of such spirits, and the affixing of the gaugers' names to warehouse certificates is obviously not for the purpose of establishing this fact, but solely for the purpose of giving the certificates the force of a receipt for the goods. DAIRYMEN Fined For Selling Milk Said To Be Below Standard.

LOCAL OPTION ELECTION CAMPAIGN WARMING UP.

OWEN TOWNSHIP MAN DROPS DEAD IN GARDEN.

GOES TO FT. LEAVENWORTH.

At a night session of the Jeffersonville City Court, held by Judge Harry C. Poinsett on Friday, the case against Herbert Becker and John Stenier, who were charged with selling milk that was not up to the standard in butter fat, was disposed of. At the time Becker and Stenier were complained of there was an affidavit sworn out against John. It was explained by the latter that it was not until Friday night, however, that it became known that the milk had gone before Judge Poinsett, pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs, amounting in all to $20, several days ago. Becker decided to stand trial and entered a plea of not guilty. Testimony was introduced that went to show that the milk was taken from the cows on the evening of April 22, cooled for one hour, placed in bottles, allowed to stand uncovered in a refrigerator until the next morning, when the caps were placed on the bottles and the milk taken to Jeffersonville to be sold. One of the witnesses was Alfred W. Bruner, pure food inspector. It was denied by Becker, his wife and her mother that the milk had been taken to the milk to deprive it of its butter fat.

Mrs. Becker testified that when her husband returned home he asked how the milk was and said the inspector had caught him. Becker was fined $15 and costs, $23 in all. Notice was given that he would appeal. John Stenier, who was being the second time he was charged with the offense, and was fined $25 and costs, the total amount being $50.

Fight Getting Hot.
Figuratively the hills of Clark county, Indiana, will blaze with local fires to-day and meetings will be held at nearly every hamlet in the county in behalf of the cause. In Jeffersonville there will be temperance services at many of the churches and at 2 o'clock tomorrow a mass meeting will be held at the Knights of Pythias armory, and will be addressed by the Hon. J. C. Howard, of Ohio. So far no demonstration of any kind has been made by those who are opposed to the movement and any propositions that are being made for the coming battle of halting the liquor traffic are being made in earnest and this week will show that the temperance cause is going upward.

On Wednesday the Board of County Commissioners will meet in Jeffersonville to name the officers for the election that has been ordered for June 1. At the same time the board will act upon the petition of Charles C. Peel and others to have the appointment of election commissioners as an election commissioner act aside. There is already considerable feeling over this step.

John Bare Dropped Dead.
Additional particulars received in Jeffersonville regarding the death of John Bare, at his home in Owen township, twenty miles distant, show that he dropped dead while walking in his garden, but no report of the cause of death has been received. John Bare, who is 81 years old, made his home with him, and was not far from his home when he expired. Mr. Bare was a native of Owen township and had lived there all his life. He was married thirty-five years ago to Miss Adella H. Daily, of Richfield, Ohio. They have three children, Edgar Bare, of Owen township; Miss May Bare and Miss Laura Bare, who live with their mother. There are three grandchildren, two brothers, one of whom is Robert Bare, at La Grange, Ky., and three sisters, two of the latter are Mrs. James C. Taggart and Mrs. Samuel E. Taggart, the sisters having married brothers.

Ordered To Kansas.

A C. Chappel, a clerk at the Government Depot, Jeffersonville, has received an order direct from the War Department to proceed to the Fort Leavenworth, Kan., military prison to relieve a clerk there who is to be temporarily away from his post for a short time. The order is considered unusual for the reason it is custom in such cases for the commanding officer at the Government Depot to be notified to select some one to relieve any clerk at another post who for some reason is to be absent. The explanation is made that Col. George L. Eubank is still the commanding officer at the Jeffersonville Depot, although he is in the office of the Quartermaster General at Washington, and Major Joseph Z. Dwyer is the temporary commandant at Jeffersonville.

NOTES OF THE NEWS FROM JEFFERSONVILLE.

The police yesterday began enforcing the ordinance again that prohibits wagons loaded with hay passing over Spring street, from Court avenue to the river, and a number were stopped by Capt. Clegg. Under the ordinance, the wagons can use Wall or Pearl streets.

An amended complaint was filed yesterday in the Circuit Court in the suit of Harry E. Whiteside against Joseph E. Condra and Herman A. Hartman for $2,000, claimed for damages on a contract to build a garage, and later, after a judgment was rendered in favor of the defendant, the case was set aside for the reason that the defendant was not a party to the suit.

Philip Schneider, administrator of the estate of Joseph Herman, yesterday filed his final report in the Circuit Court. He had collected $88.95 and had paid out $17.00, leaving a balance of $71.95 for distribution.

A tract of land containing twenty-five acres, and which is in Grant and 121, near the county almshouse, and which was owned by the late John A. school fund mortgage several years ago, was offered for sale at auction yesterday by Peter Nachand, auditor of Clark county. The appraisal value was $20,000, but there was no bid.

With Henry A. Burr and Froman M. Coats as her sureties, Mrs. Emma Barker yesterday qualified as executrix of the estate of George W. Barker, under her will, bond being given in the sum of $1,000, which was approved by Judge Harry C. Montgomery.

On a judgment of $500.00 to foreclose a school fund mortgage, was decreed by Sarah Richardson and Thomas J. Richardson, Oscar Johnson, Sheriff of Clark county, offered for sale at public auction yesterday a farm of 100 acres of land in Grant county, which was owned by Peter Nachand, auditor.

A counter motion of the plaintiff to a motion to require him to pay into court $5 for the use of the defendant in the divorce proceedings, filed by the plaintiff against Clara M. Carr, was held sufficient, and the rule was discharged yesterday in the Circuit Court.

The new interlocking switch for the traction line and the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern, which has been completed, and is now in service, which does away with the danger that formerly existed at the crossing.

Joseph A. McKee, administrator of the estate of Samuel H. Johnson, yesterday filed a report of Mr. Johnson's trust as administrator of the estate of Lewis B. Johnson, which was filed in December, 2, 1908. Mr. Johnson filed a report showing the sum of $20,000, and had paid out $200.00, leaving a balance of $19,800.00 for services.

The evidence in the $2,000 damage action of Arthur Vance against the American and Kentucky Company was completed yesterday. The jury was given the case before dinner. Up to late last evening no verdict had been reached.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA ASSOCIATION TO ELECT.

Wallace Hughes, President, Will Not Stand For Re-election.

Subscribers to the Louisville Symphony Orchestra Association will meet Tuesday noon on the parlor floor of The Sealbach to elect officers and directors for the coming year. The present officers are: President—Wallace Hughes, Vice President—W. O. Harris, Secretary—The Rev. E. L. Powell, Treasurer—Bruce Halderman, Secretary—Mrs. Alfred Brandeis, Directors—W. J. Dodd, Avery Robinson, Frank W. Quast, Paul Kratz, Miss Mildred Hill, Henry Wischniwer, Mrs. William Beckman. Mr. Hughes declines to stand for re-election. The full quota of officers consists of president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and twelve directors. The association is the force backing and managing the affairs of the Louisville Symphony Orchestra. As a result of its efforts Louisville for the first time in its history now has a well-equipped orchestra of professional artists, whose programmes are devoted to the highest works in music, and it is the earnest hope of the promoters that the orchestra will win a sufficient support to keep it going permanently. The orchestra has just finished its season of ten concerts and made a marked impression upon the music-loving people of the city. Next year a more elaborate season is planned, beginning in October or November. Of course, the detailed plans for next year will be for the new board of directors to work out.

The subscribers are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. John H. Caperton, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Norton, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brandeis, Mr. and Mrs. Avery Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. William Beckman, Mrs. Margaret Weisberg, Mrs. S. Fulton Ballard, Bayler Hickman, Mrs. W.

NEWPORT NO LONGER EXCLUSIVE ENOUGH.

Mrs. Herman Oelrichs Sacrifices Her Palatial Home, Selling It For Palfry $250,000.

Newport, R. I., May 22.—Rose Cliff, the marble palace of Mrs. Herman Oelrichs, has been sold to Thomas F. Walsh, the Colorado multimillionaire. The price paid by Walsh is $250,000, which is believed to be only about half what the place cost. At one time the property was valued at $1,000,000. It is one of the handiwork of the show places in Newport.

Mrs. Oelrichs is now here, but will leave, she says, forever on Wednesday next. She declared the resort had become "too common." She would not explain what she meant by her term, but from other expressions of hers it is supposed she meant that Newport was no longer exclusive enough to suit her.

INCREASE MADE IN NORMAL SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Richmond, Ky., May 22.—The growth of the Normal School here has been so rapid within the past six months that it has been necessary to enlarge the faculty. The new teachers appointed are: Miss K. E. Foster, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Miss Margaret Durwood, of Wisconsin; Miss Lena Purtridge, of New Jersey; and Miss Lula Dennis, of New York.

Four Generations of a Central Kentucky Family.

Thomas Johnston, of Lancaster; his daughter, Mrs. Belle Burnside; his granddaughter, Mrs. Larry D. Jones, of Monticello; and his great-granddaughter, Martha Ward Jones.

Surprised By Children.

Mrs. Jacob Baker was pleasantly surprised yesterday by her children and their friends, who gathered at her home near Glenview, eight miles north of New Albany, by way of celebrating her birthday. Her daughter, Miss Belle Sloan, of New Albany, who is visiting here, was the guest of honor.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM NEW ALBANY.

A degree team has been organized by Rowena Lodge, Knights of Pythias, with W. L. Hester as captain.

Mrs. Walter Chapman, a former resident of this city, now of Frankfort, Ky., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Jewett, Silver Hill.

H. R. Woodward and his daughter, Miss Katherine Woodward, are here from Virginia to visit Mrs. W. H. Weiman, East Market street.

The case of John S. Payne, the dairyman, was taken on a quango of venue yesterday from Magistrate Fogle's court to that of Magistrate Mix.

Reinhardt Dietz, the tobacconist, left yesterday for New York City, from which place he will sail in a few days for Germany to spend the summer.

Misses Marie Williams and Daisy Short and Lewis Short, of Louisville, are guests of Misses Martha and Grace Knox, 419 West First street.

Miss Mamie Glandier and Glandier, of Louisville, who are to be married to-day by the Rev. L. Jeffrey, pastor of Central M. E. church.

Dr. C. C. Funk, secretary of the city Board of Health, has returned home from Indianapolis, where he has been attending a meeting of the State Board of Health.

Harold D. Garriott, of Scottsburg, and Miss Stella E. Mitchell, of Floyd Knox, are to be married this evening at the Chapel, the Rev. Mr. Kupper, officiating at the ceremony.

City Attorney John H. Waters will deliver the address at the memorial exercises to be held to-morrow afternoon at the cemetery, on the Green Valley road near Georgetown, the Woodmen of America and the Pythian Sisters.

E. M. Gordon, freight agent of the B. and O. at Louisville, and N. B. Bolvin, of the Pennsylvania line, living in this city, are at Cincinnati, where they went to attend a freight agents' meeting in that city yesterday.

The funeral of Mrs. William Tighe at Holy Trinity Catholic church yesterday morning was largely attended. Services were conducted by the Rev. Charles Curran and the burial was held in Holy Trinity cemetery, on the Green Valley road near Georgetown, the Woodmen of America and the Pythian Sisters.

Mal Russell P. Finney, of this city, was appointed a member of the State A. R. Encampment, which was held at

LOUISVILLE BOYS

Arrested by New Albany Probation Officer.

SCHOOL TEACHER ACROSS THE RIVER BECOMES BRIDE.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS ORDERS IMPROVEMENTS.

SURPRISED ON HER BIRTHDAY.

A session of the Juvenile Court was held in New Albany yesterday and a number of cases of minor importance were investigated. Two lines were assessed and a reform school sentence imposed. Judge W. C. Utz presided at the opening of the session and Prof. H. E. Buick, Superintendent of the Public Schools, investigated a number of cases connected with the school children.

James Floyd, 12 years old, and Joseph Ventullo, 12 years of age, Louisville, were taken into custody yesterday morning by Probation Officer Joseph H. Kraft. They were returned to Louisville and placed in charge of the juvenile authorities. The boys allege that their mother is on Brook street, between Market and Main streets, Louisville, and that they arrived in New Albany yesterday morning at 2 o'clock on a freight train with a one-legged man, who had informed them that they had had a good job for them. Probation Officer Joseph H. Kraft doubted the story told by the boys and will communicate with the Louisville juvenile authorities concerning them.

Street Improvements.

The Board of Public Works of New Albany, after a session yesterday, ordered improved Market street, between Pearl and State streets. After the original plans had been adopted, it was decided to call the bids for July 15. City Engineer Samuel H. Smith, for the cost of the granite sidewalk and twenty-six feet of roadway on either side of the sidewalk, the city paying the balance of the improvement, is $1.75 per lineal foot on each side.

A partial improvement of Greenway Flats, running from East Eleventh street to Cedar Street, was also ordered and will be opened June 15. The improvement consists of five feet of granite sidewalk, curb and twelve and one-half feet of the grass plat. The city Engineer's estimate being $1.50 per lineal foot on either side.

A demonstration, containing the names of a majority of the resident property-owners, was received on the improvement of East Fourth street, and the improvement was beaten.

Dry Parade Streets.

One of the biggest processions ever held in New Albany was given in that city yesterday afternoon by the boys and girls connected with the dries. They were followed yesterday morning by the parade of the city, which was something marvelous.

The large procession was headed by a brass band and as soon as it was sufficiently far ahead not to interfere, girls, boys and the procession kept up the music by singing temperance and war songs, the crowds that had gathered on the sidewalks cheering and shouting all the small girls and many of the women were dressed in white, which gave the procession a gala appearance. In addition to the large number marching there were quite a number of bicyclists and in automobiles, all of which were draped in colors. The day was an ideal one, the recent rain having laid the dust and the cool weather made walking an exhilarating pleasure.

Dies In Kansas City.

A telegram was received by James W. Taylor, State street, New Albany, yesterday announcing the death of his brother, George Taylor, a former resident of that city, and who was employed by the Rock Island railway at Kansas City. The details of his death were not given in the telegram. James Taylor left on for Kansas City to attend the funeral, which will be held to-day. George Taylor was 38 years old and was at one time employed as a printer in New Albany. He was married and had three children. He removed from New Albany to Kansas City eight years ago and was highly regarded by a large circle of friends. Two sisters and two brothers also survive him. They are: James W. Taylor, of New Albany, and Alexander Taylor, of Bradford, Harrison county; Mrs. Bessie Taylor, of Dallas, Texas; and Mrs. Charles Edwards, of Salem.

Redens—Watjen.

Miss Emile E. Redens, of New Albany, and Frederick W. Watjen, of New York City, were quietly married yesterday morning at 7 o'clock at Trinity M. E. church parsonage, New Albany, the ceremony having been performed by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Frank Orman Beck. The only attendants were City Judge John M. Faris and Mrs. Faris.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Redens, 123 East Elm street. Mr. and Mrs. Watjen are both teachers in the public schools of New Albany, where she is highly esteemed.

Surprised By Children.

Mrs. Jacob Baker was pleasantly surprised yesterday by her children and their friends, who gathered at her home near Glenview, eight miles north of New Albany, by way of celebrating her birthday. Her daughter, Miss Belle Sloan, of New Albany, who is visiting here, was the guest of honor.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER WOMAN A FAILURE.

Chicago, May 22.—While Mrs. Charles A. Mace was walking with her three children near her home in this city to-day, Gus Anderson, whose wife is housekeeper for Mrs. Mace, came up behind the latter and fired a bullet into her shoulder. He then shot himself in the head and stomach and is expected to die. Mrs. Mace will recover.

Anderson and his wife are said to have separated some time ago and Mrs. Anderson went to work for Mrs. Mace. Anderson, yesterday, it is said, called at the Mace home and said to his wife, Mrs. Mace told him Mrs. Anderson did not care to see him and shut the door. This is believed to have led to the attempted assassination to-day.

"To Them That Hath"

A SHORT SERMON TO FAT FOLKS.

"To them that hath shall be given," is a sentence that applies to fat people very neatly. It is common knowledge that a human being begins to fatten up, when they eat more than they need, and when they want, until finally stage is reached where reduction must be made or decided disadvantage results.

Then comes forward the aged-old query, "Reduce—how?" To the unfortunates who are fatter than the fatted calf, twin evils—less eating—more activity. They contemplate a more less healthy stage of dieting and exercising. So it may be said safely that every man or woman in the land now undergoing the fattening process has his or her mental eye fixed dubiously on that distant day when he or she will have to don the "scales and sackcloth of reduction" prospect, and so it is with considerable satisfaction that we announce the emancipation of the fat. Nowadays one may reduce much in only a pound a day if desired, or hold their fat in check, absolutely without any dieting, doing a bit of exercise, missing a single meal, doing a particle of harm or causing a scold's wrinkle. That's required, as hundreds testify, is the taking after meals and at bedtime of the Marmala Prescription Tablet, which tablets are sold by the Marmala Company, Dept. 10, Detroit, Mich., and are sent by mail at the retail price of 75 cents, this sum being accepted for a case of tablets as well and generously filled with that even produces desirable results.

ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE
GETTING THINGS IN SHAPE.

PROGRAMME OF THE EVENTS.

There will be something doing in the way of a good time when the Grand Council of the United Commercial Travelers of Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia assemble in Louisville on June 3, 4 and 5, judging by the elaborate programme that has been arranged for them during their stay. The serious business of the council is only incidental to the score of good times that have been planned.

Fred W. Lyons, past councillor of the Falls City Council, No. 348, is at the head of the committee that will provide the fun and comfort for the visitors who will be here about early in June. From early morning until late at night they will be victims of Kentucky hospitality.

In order not to lose a moment of precious time the programme on the opening day will start at 8 o'clock in the morning, when the "Mysteries of Bagdad" will be started by the funny men of the order. Just what they have up their sleeves has not been divulged, except that they promise to cut some of the visitors.

On the same morning at 10:30 o'clock, a general reception will be held on the roof garden at the Seabach. The visiting members will be taken around the city on a trolley ride at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, while the more serious things of the session will be threshed out by the Grand Council at Knights of Pythias hall, 528 Sixth street.

At 8 o'clock in the evening "Bagmen work" will be instituted at Knights of Pythias hall.

Little Time For Business.

The Grand Council will only give up about two hours to business on the second day. It meets at 9:30 o'clock in the morning at Knights of Pythias hall and will adjourn shortly before noon. In the afternoon the women folk will be whizzed in motor cars around the beauty spots of the city. In the evening the beauty spots of the city will start up the river on a "moonlight" excursion. There will be music, dancing, refreshments, a smoker and "tunts."

After winding up the business session in the morning of the third day the entire crowd of visiting delegates, their wives, daughters and other women guests will go to Fontaine Ferry Park, where, at 1 o'clock, there will be an open-air banquet. At the conclusion of the "feed" some fast and furious fun will be started. For three hours "the whole crowd will play the various forms of amusement of the board."

As Past Councillor Lyons puts it: "They will wind up the session with a ball."

At the reception held at the Seabach a number of local men will make addresses of welcome. Judge Gregory, president of the Commercial Club, will extend a welcome in behalf of the organization programme of events.

One of the Big Features.

One of the big features of the session will be the organization of the fun branch of the order, which is known as the Ancient Mystic Order Bagmen of Bagdad. This organization will furnish the bulk of the entertainment. Here is the official programme of events.

JUNE 3.—"Mysteries of Bagdad." (The funny end.)
10:30 a. m.—General reception at roof garden of the Seabach.
2 p. m.—Trolley ride around the city for visiting women.

JUNE 4.—Grand Council session, 528 Sixth street, Knights of Pythias hall.
2 p. m.—"Bagmen work" at Knights of Pythias hall, 528 Sixth street.

JUNE 5.—Grand Council session, 528 Sixth street, Knights of Pythias hall.
2 p. m.—Automobile ride for visiting women.

2:30 a. m.—Moonlight excursion, steamer Columbus; music, dancing, refreshments, smokers, stunts.

JUNE 6.—Grand Council session, Knights of Pythias hall, 528 Sixth street.
1 p. m.—Open-air banquet, Fontaine Ferry Park.
2 p. m.—"Fun of park" and dancing until 6 p. m.

KING'S DAUGHTERS' NOTES.

[Communicated.]

The conference of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons is being held at Bucyrus, O., May 21 to 25. State Secretary Mrs. Homer M. Stucky, representative for the Kentucky branch, left for Bucyrus Thursday night. Other members who will be in attendance are Miss Jennie C. Benedict and Mrs. Will Jefferson.

The House Committee of the Home for Incubables met with the Executive Board at the Home on Sterans avenue Thursday afternoon, at which time bids for plumbing and carpenter work were discussed and accepted, and work begun at once. Quite a number of donations were reported by the various members and were gratefully accepted.

The cut-rate social given by the Comforting Circle last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. H. H. Kraft was a success both socially and financially, there being about 500 present. The proceeds from the social will be used by this circle for furnishing and maintaining a room for the Home for Incubables.

Junior Mission Circle, a children's band of the Third Baptist Lutheran church, gave a very delightful entertainment at the church Tuesday evening. State Treasurer Miss L. V. Hadfield gave them a little talk on the history of the order. After the entertainment refreshments were served in the Sunday-school room by the children and the evening was enjoyed by all who were present.

Jennie Cassidy Rest Circle will give a picture show for the benefit of the Home for Incubables on the evenings of May 27-28, at 8 o'clock at the Second Presbyterian church, Second street and Broadway. This entertainment will consist of dissolving views illustrating travels in the Old World and the land we live in.

The King's Helpers Circle of the Comforting Presbyterian church will give an entertainment on Friday evening, May 28, in the church parlors. Nine-tenth and Jefferson streets. The proceeds will be used by this circle for the Home for Incubables.

The Loyal Followers' Division of the Mite Circle will give a musicale and lawn fete on Thursday evening, June 3, at the home of Mrs. Charles Reicos, 252 West Market street. The proceeds will be used by this circle for the furnishing of a room for the Home for Incubables.

ALL HANDS PRESSED IN TOBACCO PLANTING.

Glasgow, Ky., May 22.—Since the rain began here Wednesday night thousands of tobacco plants have been set. All available help was pressed into service. Even ballplayers and others who posed on the "dude" list were persuaded to roll up their trousers and bluster their hands.

Suit Clearance

Annual Summer Reductions

NOW IN FORCE.

The beginning of the end in Cloth Suits is here. We start our summer clearance several weeks earlier than usual for obvious reasons, and quote prices on high-grade garments that have never been obtainable until July or August.

There are about 1,200 Suits to be sacrificed, and every single article now goes on at the summer marked down prices. No restrictions, no reservations, none held back. It is the most sweeping reduction ever offered by a legitimate concern.

In order that the choosing may be easy, we have assembled the entire stock into six lots. On the ticket of each suit you will find a red number, and no matter what it originally was you now get the suit at the advertised price.

Look for this red number. Bring this advertisement along for comparison. Come to-morrow morning and get first pick. Following is the schedule:

$16.75 Lot No. 1—This includes Black and Stylish Colored Suits in the various popular shapes and materials, that ranged formerly up to $28.00.

$20.00 Lot No. 2—An immense collection of popular materials in black and fashionable colors, including the elegant tailored effects, ranging in value up to $33.00.

$25.00 Lot No. 3—This is a monster collection, including white, black, white grounds with black stripes, rich plain shades, mannish stripes, shadow designs and all high-class materials. Values here range up to $38.00.

$27.50 Lot No. 4—A magnificent array of strictly high-grade fashionable Tailored Suits. Black, white and all the good shades. The former range is up to $43.00.

$33.00 Lot No. 5—This is a most representative assortment, including those elegant foreign materials, mannish stripes and other rich novelty weaves. In this lot you will find suits really worth up to $50.00.

$39.00 Lot No. 6—In this range you get imported novelties, elegant tailored and semi-tailored models. The richest colorings, as well as black or white. Some in this assortment sold as high as $75.00.

Store Your Furs Quick.

It is high time to put your furs in our storage vaults for the summer. The festive moth is getting busy, and before you are aware of it serious damage will occur.

Ours are the only modern vaults in the city, in charge of an expert furrier. Our receipt covers you fully in case of loss or damage by fire, moth or theft. The charges are nominal. Call 364 (either phone) and our wagon will stop.

BIGGER NAVY.

Meyer's Cry Despite Reduction in Estimates.

TWO BIG BATTLESHIPS IN 1911 HIS PROGRAMME.

EXPENSES OF BUREAUS AND YARDS TO BE DECREASED.

MUST PRACTICE ECONOMY.

Washington, May 22.—The reductions in the estimates for the naval appropriations for 1911, as ordered by President Taft, will not affect the battleship building programme of the navy, according to an announcement made today by Secretary Meyer.

He declared that it was the intention of the Administration to provide appropriations in that year for the building of two battleships. Some reduction has had to be made in the minor recommendations in the building programme of the general board, but the main features of the plan of building will remain unchanged.

An appropriation sufficient for the building of five torpedo-boat destroyers or one repair ship for the fleet, whichever is deemed the more urgent, will be made, according to the Secretary.

Congress having cut down the 1910 programme to about half and contemplating a like cut in the next estimates, he submitted, Secretary Meyer and the board have included only about one-half of the estimates of the originally planned programme for 1911.

The impression prevails in some quarters, according to Secretary Meyer, that the $10,000,000 decrease in the 1911 estimates for the navy contemplated a reduction of the number of battleships to be provided for from two ships to one. The Secretary declared, was erroneous.

The reductions had been effected only after the most careful consideration in consultations with the general board, the chiefs of all the bureaus, collectively and individually, and the commandants of the Atlantic, navy yards. They came principally from the estimates for appropriations for the various bureaus and navy yards, but they have been made so as to in no way affect the efficiency of the ships of the yards.

The two battleships for 1911 are to be of the heavy single caliber, all big gun type, of which six already are provided for—the North Dakota, Delaware, Florida, Utah, Arkansas and Wyoming. These two ships will complete the plan of the general board to have a squadron of eight ships of this type, all having the same tactical qualities. The details of the new vessels have not been made public.

Griffith and Mrs. Beauchamp Free.

Washington, May 22.—Word reached the State Department to-day from Honduras of the acquittal before the appellate court of Eugene O. Griffith and Mrs. Caroline Beauchamp, who had been sentenced to twenty-five years imprisonment in several business ventures in Honduras, and their success had aroused the enmity of the natives. Griffith asserts that their arrest was merely a trick to ruin them because they had decided to come home with their earnings.

Decision Favors Wilson.

Washington, May 22.—By the action of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia in the case of Alsop Process Company of St. Louis against

Secretary of Agriculture, Wilson, in which the four companies seek to have the secretary rescind from his determination to prosecute manufacturers of bleached flour, a decision favorable to the Government was fore-shadowed. The court apparently took the position that the Alsop Process Company had not been injured by the secretary's action, which was not directed against the machinery.

Nicaragua Negotiates Big Loan.

Washington, May 22.—Announcement was made at the Nicaraguan legation to-day that Nicaragua had just closed negotiations for obtaining a large loan from European bankers. While the amount of the loan is not stated, it is said to be sufficient for the consolidation of all of Nicaragua's outstanding debts and to complete the railroad from Lake Nicaragua to the Atlantic Ocean.

Depositories Selected.

Washington, May 22.—For the reception, safekeeping and disbursing of funds advanced to disbursing officers by the State Department, the Treasury Department has designated the First National Bank of New York, N. Y., and the Galveston National Bank of Galveston, Tex. Each bank will give $100,000 security.

To Open New Lands For Entry.

Washington, May 22.—President Taft to-day issued a proclamation providing for the opening up to settlement and entry of about 40,000 acres of land in the Flathead, Montana; 200,000 in the Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, and between 50,000 and 100,000 in the Spokane, Wash. reservations.

New College Fraternity.

Danville, Ky., May 22.—[Special.]—Five of the graduate students in Central University have formed a graduate fraternity under the name of Phi Epsilon. The fraternity is permanent, although local, and is inspired to by all post graduate students. The following persons are the charter members: S. H. Watkins, H. G. Bradford, E. E. Hume, Jr., Collins Lee and T. G. Watkins.

COLORS OF TIGER

Everywhere In Evidence In Louisville Yesterday.

ASSOCIATION OF PRINCETON CLUBS ELECT OFFICERS.

JOHN W. BARR, JR., NAMED AS HEAD OF ORGANIZATION.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S SPEECH.

The "Black and the Orange," famous colors of old Princeton University, were in evidence on all sides in Louisville yesterday in honor of the annual meeting of the Western Association of Princeton Clubs. Even Churchill Downs was arrayed in the colors of the noted seat of learning in honor of President Woodrow Wilson, of the university, and the members of the alumni who were on Kentucky soil. Many of the members of the alumni who attended the meeting yesterday journeyed to Louisville from Princeton, at which St. Louis was chosen as the next meeting place and officers for the coming year were elected.

Louisville Honored.

Louisville was honored with the presidency of the association this year in the person of John W. Barr, Jr., which considered a great honor by the members of the alumni in this city. Mr. Barr is of the class of 1887. Princeton, of St. Louis, Mo., of the class of 1901, was chosen secretary. C. L. Hamilton, of Chicago, of the class of 1891, was chosen treasurer. Vice presidents were elected as follows: Louisville Club—Dr. J. G. Cecil, of class of 1895; Western Association of Clubs of Pennsylvania—L. C. Woods, of Pittsburgh, of class of 1891; Chicago Club—J. Maynard Harlan, of Chicago, of class of 1891; Tennessee Club—L. Tally, of Nashville, of class of 1902; Association of the Southwest—C. H. Whitehead, of Kansas, of class of 1892; Northwestern Ohio Club—James Matthews, of Cleveland, of class of 1890; Cincinnati Club—The Rev. Paul Matthews, of Cincinnati, of class of 1890; Ohio Club—H. T. Murry, of San Francisco, of class of 1904; St. Louis Club—K. D. Meiler, of class of 1894.

Visit Country Club.

The members of the alumni attending the meeting, together with President Wilson, went on a special car to the country club. They first assembled in the room of the Seelbach. As soon as they reached the club, lunch was served. After the noon hour, luncheon was partaken of and the election of officers took place. St. Louis won the next meeting without opposition. After the business was attended to the delegates were entertained at a great dinner at the Seelbach. Other men of note who were at the speakers' table were W. L. Greer, secretary of the association, W. B. McViney, John Maynard Harlan, Lawrence Young, of Chicago, D. S. Nickman, of Dayton, O., Joseph Shea, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Dr. John G. Cecil, of Louisville.

President Wilson Speaks.

The feature of the banquet was the speech of President Woodrow Wilson, which was the keynote of which was "What will be the future of the higher educational institutions of the United States, in view of the conditions that now exist socially, financially and otherwise?"

One Station Has Been Opened and Two Others Will Be Ready Soon.

The Baby's Milk Fund Association, organized for the purpose of cutting down the infant mortality rate in Louisville during the summer months, is already doing good work, and is preparing to expand by the installation of several new milk stations. One station, where pure certified milk can be procured at a cents a pint and where the babies are carefully treated and watched, has already been established, and the second and third will be opened within a few days.

The first station, opened last Tuesday at Neighborhood House, is already doing a great amount of good. Many parents who are compelled to nourish their little ones on cow's milk are taking advantage of the station. A number of children, ranging in age from 6 years down to a few months, have been registered and are securing milk from the station and being weighed on each visit and carefully watched by the station physicians.

Station No. 2 will be opened at the Wesley Settlement House, 809 East Main street, Tuesday, and within a few days No. 3 will be opened. This station will be in the vicinity of Boone Park. The executive committee of the association will visit the section to-day and decide upon a location. Mrs. Leitchworth Smith, treasurer of the association, and who is taking a deep interest in the project, announced that funds have been coming into her hands liberally and that the success of the plan seems assured. The movement was given an impetus the past week by the visit here and assistance of Mrs. Helen Rogers, of Indianapolis. Mrs. Rogers is an expert in the line of baby work and has been several days aiding in perfecting the plans for pure, healthful milk for the babies in Louisville. The various milk stations, where the supply of milk will be carefully prepared and dispensed, will be open until September.

Colleges As Leisure Resorts.

"I must say that the vast majority of the State universities are working on vocational lines. The State university is typical of an American university. Still, though, the high universities must be free from the dictation of the taxpayers. The State universities must do what is proper for the reason the taxpayers pay the bills. I believe that the State universities are colleges will only exist as leisure resorts of wealthy persons. I tell you that the next time a college is founded, it will be a college of leisure. We will settle the fate of the kind of colleges that will continue to exist. We will know whether they will stand as they now are or be radically changed."

The speaker dwelt at length on the comradeship and social intercourse among the students at college. He said that the college must become more democratic in their ideals. He said men become public enemies when they become segregated in their interests and ideas. Said he:

"The trouble in Congress to-day is the attempt to raise the tariff so that the members are individually blinded by self-interest. Each has an interest to protect and each is working for the good of the United States as a whole. You can't make a reasonable tariff revision by items. It can only be done by system. All interests must be united."

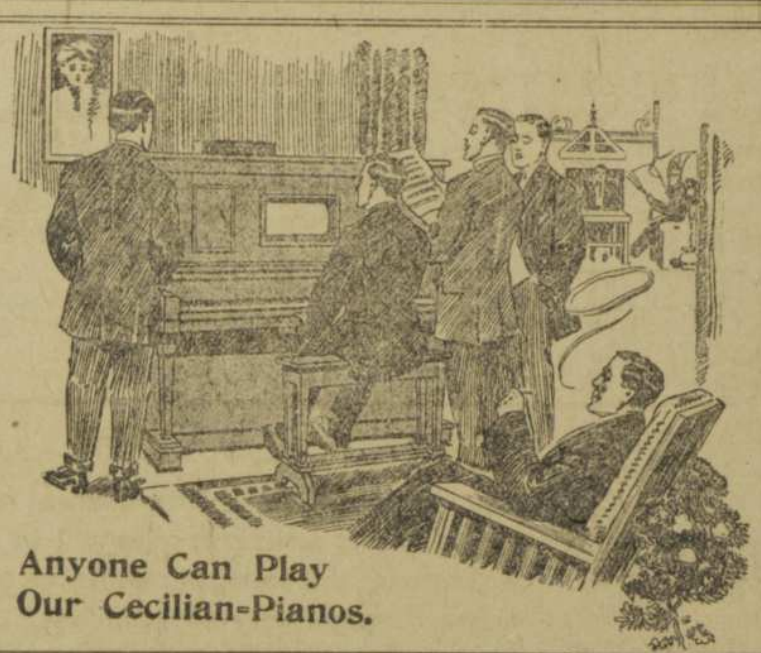

The speaker discussed the democratic principles from a broad viewpoint. The trouble to-day is that many men think that the college has been lifted up by sympathy with the vast majority of men. He said if college education classified men, it is not worth the while of a democratic country. Said he:

"There are two institutions that fully meet democratic expectations of America. These are the military and naval educational institutions. These are the institutions that make themselves common instruments for the good of the country. I do not know any men more in touch with these principles in the United States than the soldiers and sailors. The college had no monopoly in making good fellows. He declared that learning should be the chief aim of any college."

ALL CAN PLAY THE CECILIAN WAY.

THE CECILIAN CAN BE PLAYED BY ALL.

You Can Have Music In the Home Any Time You Wish

By installing a Farrand-Cecilian Player Piano.

The home, no matter where it is located, is not as cheerful without music as it would be with it.

Think of the many pleasant evenings one could spend at home playing the kind of music one enjoys most, whether it is classical, operatic or the popular airs of the day.

And you need not know a note of music in order to do this, either.

With the Farrand-Cecilian it is not necessary to know the rudiments of music in order to enjoy the works of the celebrated masters; all you have to do is this—listen.

Insert a roll of music and begin pedaling—each roll is marked and arranged so as the merest novice can tell just exactly how to pedal in order to secure the proper effects. One does not have to bother with a half-dozen different levers and devices, either, in order to secure those effects.

The construction of the Farrand-Cecilian is unlike any other player in the world, in that the vital parts of the player mechanism is contained in metal, making an absolutely air-tight construction, unaffected by temperature and the different climatic changes, where the player mechanism in others is made of wood, and is liable to leak under the different climatic changes.

Let us show you the difference between the Farrand-Cecilian and other Player Pianos. Come in, try and hear one yourself. We will take great pleasure in showing and telling you all about it.

Be sure and ask about our Library proposition. The price of the Farrand-Cecilian is $650, on payments if desired.

Labor Leader Must Remain In Prison Until Outcome of Woman's Injuries Is Known.

New York, May 22.—Cornelius P. Shea, former president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, is locked up in the Jefferson Market prison without bail to-night pending the outcome of the injuries of Alice Walsh, a young woman whom he admits, according to the police, having stabbed more than twenty times with a pocket knife after a quarrel in his apartment in West Thirtieth street last night.

The woman was variously reported as recovering and dying to-day, but it was said at the hospital to-night that no definite prediction of her condition could be made. She is very weak, but surgeons still have some hope of pulling her through.

Shea's labor friends have rallied to his support and members of the local union of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters discussed his case at a meeting to-night. It was suggested that a fund be raised for his defense, but no action along this line was taken.

EARNEST PLEA

For Less Stateliness and More Democracy.

CHURCH TOO DIGNIFIED, DECLARES MR. CONVERSE.

CUMBERLAND ASSEMBLY RAISES FUND OF $10,000.

TO BATTLE IN THE COURTS.

Denver, Col., May 22.—Less "stately treading" and more democracy; less lounging in the luxury of the church waiting for the sinner to approach and more evangelism among the lowly were the keynote sounded at today's session of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. The lead in advocacy of this doctrine was taken by John Converse, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, of Philadelphia, who in presenting his report as chairman of the committee on evangelistic work, said the church had been altogether too dignified to go out after the sinner and had been content to rest in state, awaiting the approach of the seeker for peace.

A noteworthy feature to-day was the gathering of the "Blue and Gray" veterans, who were addressed by Dr. Barkley, the moderator-elect, a Confederate veteran.

It is regarded as probable that the next assembly will convene at Atlantic City, though a bid for the meeting has been made by both Cleveland and Seattle.

To-morrow there will be devotional services and sermon by the new moderator in the Central Presbyterian church, and a large parade of Sunday-school children in the afternoon.

The following important committee chairmanships were announced: Judicial, the Rev. Gray Bolton, of Philadelphia; education, Dr. Edgar P. Hill, of Chicago; foreign missions, the Rev. Howard Johnston, of Colorado Springs, Col.; ministerial relief, the Rev. Josiah McLean, of Salt Lake City; finance, Joseph Yearhouse, of New York; home missions, W. L. McEwan, of Pittsburgh; bills and omissions, Dr. B. P. Fullerton, of St. Louis; polity, the Rev. Morris D. Edwards, of St. Paul. Immediately after the assembly was called to order this morning Dr. Barkley, the newly elected moderator, formally announced the appointment of Charles S. Holt, of Chicago, as vice moderator.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, the revivalist, who has been conducting meetings in Australia, was accorded an ovation as he took the platform to explain his work. The report of the Cumberland Brotherhood, which was presented by Charles S. Holt, of Chicago, the president of the organization, asked the assembly to lend its aid in the formation of synodical councils and in other ways of extending the brotherhood.

The woman's board of foreign missions to-day held a rally with home missionaries.

TO FIGHT COURT BATTLES

Cumberland Presbyterian Assembly Raises a Fund of $10,000.

Bentonville, Ark., May 22.—A result of pledges made to-day a fund in excess of $10,000 will be at the disposal of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church to fight court battles in connection with the contention of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America that the property of the Cumberland Church should go to those members the majority of whom are assigned to the latter organization several years ago. Of the amount more than half came from individual subscribers.

What Newbro's Herpicide

has done for others it may do for you

CLARENCE HAMILTON.

"Enclosed you will find a recent photograph of myself, showing the growth of my hair since beginning the use of your Herpicide. Before using Herpicide the top of my head was completely bald, but the use of only two bottles has brought a new growth of hair. I had spent between $20 and $30 on other remedies, but failed to derive any benefit until using your Herpicide. I cannot commend this remedy too highly. It has cured my dandruff, baldness or falling hair." (Signed) CLARENCE HAMILTON, Atlanta Police Department, Atlanta, Georgia.

WHILE CHRONIC BALDNESS is incurable, many cases of primary or incipient baldness have been completely overcome with Newbro's Herpicide, the ORIGINAL remedy that "kills the dandruff germ." Of course, the rational plan is to save the hair while there is hair to save, but even after it is gone there is a "fighting chance" if the hair follicles are not attacked. Herpicide stops itching of the scalp instantly.

Send 10 cents in stamps to The Herpicide Company, Dept. 38, Detroit, Mich., for sample and booklet. One Dollar Bottles Guaranteed. At Drug Stores. When you call for Herpicide do not accept a substitute. Applications at prominent Barber Shops.

TO REPEAT FANCY DRESS BALL FOR CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL.

Mr. Macauley Donates Use of His Theater For Next Saturday Afternoon.

To help raise a balance of $15,000 needed for the building fund of the Children's Hospital, the corner-stone of which was laid Saturday, May 15, the beautiful fancy dress ball given by Miss Meme Wastell's pupils will be repeated at Maccauley's Theater next Saturday afternoon.

To this and Mr. Macauley will kindly donate the use of his theater for the purpose that the pupils may not be cut unduly short by expenses.

Work on the handsome and commodious hospital building is going on rapidly and it is the desire of those who are charged with the latter organization several years ago. Of the amount more than half came from individual subscribers.

The fancy dress ball was most pleasing to the eye when it was given some time ago and it is expected that a liberal-sized gathering will see the little ones next Saturday.

DR. MECHLING MAY NOT ACCEPT NOMINATION.

Declines To State Positively, However, Whether He Will Make the Race For Alderman.

There is much rumor to the effect that Dr. H. E. Mechling, who was nominated by the Republican convention last Tuesday as a candidate for Alderman, will not accept the honor that has been thrust upon him. When asked whether he would accept the nomination, Dr. Mechling said last night that he had not made up his mind as to what he would do. He expressed a desire to accept the nomination, but he would make no other statement. The belief is that Dr. Mechling intended to accept the nomination, but he would not hesitate in saying so. The answer given to the question as to whether he would take no small amount of persuasion on the part of the Republican leaders to decline the nomination was that he would not.

One of the chief moguls of the machine was asked yesterday afternoon if he had heard anything to the effect that Dr. Mechling would not accept the nomination, but he said that he had heard nothing in regard to the matter. Dr. Mechling was named by a special committee of five Republicans to the effect that he would make no other statement. The belief is that Dr. Mechling intended to accept the nomination, but he would not hesitate in saying so. The answer given to the question as to whether he would take no small amount of persuasion on the part of the Republican leaders to decline the nomination was that he would not.

MRS. ELIZABETH VON HOVEN DIES OF HEART DISEASE.

Mrs. Elizabeth Katherine Von Hoven, who was the wife of Gottfried Christian Von Hoven, died at her home, 35 South Clay street, last night after several weeks' illness of heart disease. She was born in Germany in 1856, and had been a resident of Louisville since 1924. Besides her husband, she leaves five children—John, Fred, Henry, Albert and Miss Minnie Von Hoven—and two brothers, Jacob and Christian Schuman, one of Los Angeles, Cal., and the other of Seattle, Wash.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS COLLECTED $335 YESTERDAY.

Given a Spread At the Club House In Appreciation of Their Good Work.

It was Boy's Day at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday, when seventy of the boys divided up into ten squads made a canvass of the city from early morning until evening in an effort to raise $500 for need for various improvements in the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. and collected $335.

Several days ago these same boys distributed folders through the city telling the citizens why the money was being raised. Yesterday, armed with a small book in which they took the names and amount of every subscriber, they started forth. Each boy wore a strip of white silk upon which was printed in black the word "Collector."

The collectors were directed by the following "captains": J. R. Applegate, Charles E. Dunn, Prentiss Perry, Ernest Ray, Chester Poltz, Samuel Messer, William B. Elwang, James Means, William Brucker and Chester Smith.

In the evening, after the solicitors had made their returns, a banquet was given them at the Y. M. C. A., where eighty-three youngsters with large appetites sat down to a feast that had been spread for them. Prentiss Perry, chairman of the committee of boys who collected the funds, presided at the banquet, and called upon Dr. H. A. Davidson, C. H. Hamilton, financial secretary, G. C. Terry, father of the presiding officer, and H. E. Montague, director of boys' work. All of the speeches were brief, and the speakers devoted their remarks to words of congratulation for the youngsters' efforts. The ten "captains" were also called upon to speak.

The money raised will be expended for a tennis court for the boys, tank equipment and other improvements in the department devoted to boys. While the committee who directed the collection of the money were not present, the money was raised.

Lexington, Ky., May 22.—[Special.]—W. Harry Renick, member of the Lexington board of councilmen, who conducts a drug store on the corner of Third and Limestone streets, was arrested to-night on a warrant charging disorderly conduct, sworn out by Miss Sara McGarvey, daughter of the Rev. J. H. McGarvey, president of the Bible College of Transylvania University.

It is said that Renick was disorderly and offensive on a street car upon which Miss McGarvey and other women were passengers, and Miss McGarvey, who is a prominent member of the assembly of the Presbyterian and Chesapeake Presbyteries. The latter recites that there is much dissatisfaction among the members of the church on civil government for intervention in behalf of the two American missionaries facing criminal charges in the Congo.

An opponent to that, said Mr. Fraser, "because from my point of view, it seems contrary to the historic position of our church, contrary to the spirit of our standards and contrary to the scriptures which teach us that 'Christ's Kingdom is not of this world,' that the weapons of our warfare are not carnal."

"Despite the protest which was in its nature formal the appeal to President Taft to aid Missionaries Morrison and Shepherd, who are to be tried May 25 at Leopoldville, Congo Free State, is asked for."

Polygamy in foreign fields is the burden of two overtures presented to the assembly of the Presbyterian and Chesapeake Presbyteries. The latter recites that there is much dissatisfaction among the members of the church on civil government for intervention in behalf of the two American missionaries facing criminal charges in the Congo.

The Chesapeake avowee asserts the principle of non-polygamy should be made clear and beyond the shadow of a doubt, on the statement that certain missionaries in dealing with polygamists. A committee of investigation is asked for.

The Charleston overture bases its request for the appointment of such a committee on the statement that certain missionaries have received polygamists in the church and still retain them in good standing.

BODY PROVES TO BE HIGGERSON RILEY

YOUNG MAN BURIED AT PADUCAH AS RICHARD HITE IS ANOTHER.
 Paducah, Ky., May 22.—(Special.)—John C. Riley, of Henderson, this afternoon identified the body of the boy buried here Thursday from Kansas City as that of his son, Higgserson Riley, a telegraph operator. The father arrived here this afternoon, and the body was buried. It was exhumed and taken to Henderson for burial. Higgserson Riley worked in Paducah the winter part of last year, and a needle with the name of a Paducah firm led to the identification. Riley had gone to Kansas City and identified the boy as his son Richard, but had since admitted his mistake. The lad was about 19 years old.

HIDES VALUABLES IN STOVE FOR SAFEKEEPING.

Columbus, Ind., Traveling Man Has Money and Jewelry Consumed by Fire.
 Columbus, Ind., May 22.—(Special.)—For the past several nights this place has been terrorized and no fewer than a dozen burglaries have been committed within the past week. Naturally the residents have been trying to protect themselves against the robbers, but when James Cain, a traveling man for a Chicago firm, tried it last night he lost. He took a number of greenbacks, some silver, his gold watch and chain and other jewelry and placed them in a base burner at his home against any probable visits from burglars. He felt sure that there was no fire in the base burner, yet he was mistaken, for this morning he awoke to find that all of his hidden valuables had been burned.

J. W. VAN CLEAVE VISITING IN LOUISVILLE.

Former President National Association of Manufacturers Once a Resident of This City.
 J. W. Van Cleave, who for seventeen years was a resident of Louisville, but who now lives in St. Louis, is here visiting his mother, Mrs. Eliza Van Cleave, 870 Cherokee road. Mr. Van Cleave is president of a big stove manufacturing concern with headquarters in St. Louis. He was signally honored last Thursday when he retired as president of the National Association of Manufacturers at its annual session in New York. He had been president of the association for the past three years, and after being re-elected unanimously he declined to serve. On retiring he was presented with a check for $1,000, a handsome diamond ring and other gifts. Mr. Van Cleave is in Louisville mainly to visit his mother, but is being kept here by his mother and old friends and receiving congratulations.

MOTION PICTURE SHOWS.

The Mary Anderson.
 The prize-winning aerial exhibitions of the Wright brothers, which have been returned from Europe, where these aerial heroes have created a vast amount of interest with their wonderful invention, will be shown in motion picture form at the Mary Anderson. These pictures, which were taken at the time the Wrights were contesting for the world's honors as aerial navigators, are claimed to be the most remarkable views ever produced. Another feature film will show the first invasion of the white man into the "wild and woolly" West, and the balance of the bill will include some lively comedy subjects, notably the "Installment Collector," which is sure to produce unlimited mirth. Mr. Reese, the baritone soloist, will have two new songs, entitled "Merry Mary Mary" and "In the Shadow of the Moons," which will be accompanied by appropriate illustrations.

SCULPTOR'S MISTAKE.

[Washington Correspondence of Boston Script.]
 A few days ago a bronze statue to the memory of Alexander R. Shepherd, one-time "boss" of Washington, was erected in the plaza in front of the new municipal building. While the statue is doubtless a work of art, and a good likeness of the noted contractor who converted the National Capitol into a splendid city, it has caused many staid citizens to smile.

EATING BETWEEN MEALS.

[Washington Letter to the Boston Transcript.]
 The United States Bureau of Education suggests that mothers ought to band together and advise their children to eat between meals. This matter of eating between meals is one of which very much could be accomplished by co-operation among mothers. One mother who allows her child to go hungry to bed, and another who makes it exceedingly difficult for other mothers to adhere to their rules. One mother who is a housewife, and himself must be turned.

Casino Theater.

Former President Theodore Roosevelt took a recess a few days ago to work on his story of the African hunt, but long before this narrative was the light of day, his exploits will be celebrated by the moving picture people, who are the first to capture the current interest. For example, the Casino Moving Picture Theater will today begin the exhibition of a film called "Hunting Big Game in Africa," which will undertake all the adventures of the Roosevelt party.

FLAGRAINS FOR ORPHANS

Gov. Willson Gives "Feller-To-Feller" Talk.

Then Shakes Hands With the Masonic Kiddies.

Music by the Band, Girls In Summer Dresses, Etc.

GREAT DOIN'S AT THE HOME.

There was a typical old-time flag-raising out at the Masonic Widows and Orphans' Home yesterday afternoon—the kind of an affair we've all listened to grandpa tell about, when a Fourth of July or some other patriotic day came to come from all over the county in hay-bedded farm wagons to the county seat to see the flag-raising on Decoration day or the Old-Father's Fourth of July or stand in the hot sun for hours while local talent in the person of the town's rising young light orated on patriotism and called upon high heaven as a witness to certain of his Monroe doctrine's intricacies. Well, that was the great general impression given of the doings at the Home yesterday. All of the elements of good, old celebrations were present—the bugle and drum corps, the pretty girls in summer frocks, young mothers and those more experienced, old soldiers, flowers, glad hands—and the Governor.

Not a Baby Cried, Not a Collar Wilted

Of course, every thing was much better day yesterday. The weather was ideal in the first place, the music was better, the girls were prettier and the speeches were short, no babies cried and nobody's collar wilted with deplorable exertions. In the early part of the day it looked as if the Masonic folk were going to have the same old happy experience with the weather that those at the Children's Free Hospital had a week ago yesterday at the corner of stone laying, but about an hour before the beginning of the ceremonies attendant upon the dedication of the new temple and the raising of Old Glory the sun came out beautifully. Shortly before 4 o'clock the time announced for the beginning of things, Gov. Augustus E. Willson, accompanied by a few friends, came out in a street car. The lawn or campus in front of the school building and chapel where the flag-raising is placed was arranged for the ceremonies. An organ, speaker's stand and chairs for part of the audience filled an open place among the trees. Before the exercises commenced, the Governor met the members of the board of the home and those who were to take part in the services. Asked if he had a manuscript of his address for the occasion, Gov. Willson smiled at the smile of his which appears in all the pictures and at all of the gatherings which he attends. "No," he said, "I never write down what I'm going to say. Fact is, I'm not addicted to the practice. I wouldn't read for speech and I'd forget it if I tried to learn it by heart. The only time I prepared my address before hand was for the Lincoln celebration at Hodgenville. Honest, I don't even know what I'm going to talk about this afternoon and I'm sort of nervous."

"The Gov." His Smile and "Big Mitt"

Then he spun a little yarn apropos of the situation or dilemma, whichever, and went on passing out the Big Mitt to the friends known and otherwise who gathered around. Promptly at 4 o'clock the drum and trumpet corps, composed of about sixty or seventy boys of the home, leading a procession of all of the other girls and boys of the place, marched out of the north doorway of the main building and circling the front walk, came out on Second street, around and into the front gate leading to the chapel and school building. As the youngsters came out of the home they began to play, and all the men uncovered. Forming a semicircle around the place arranged for the exercises, the children opened the programme proper with the stirring music of "America," and all hands, or voices rather, joined in. Over the stand the Governor and the group of men at the head of the doings hummed and too-timed their best. None of them sang the words, so it could be distinguished, anyway.

Prayer For Mrs. Willson.

Following the music, the Rev. R. D. Smart, pastor of the Broadway Methodist church, made the invocation prayer. In the midst of the prayer he asked the customary blessings by asking God to spare and restore to health Mrs. Augustus E. Willson, who is ill at a local hospital. Next John H. Cowles, deputy grand master of the Masonic order of Kentucky, made the introductory address. The Hon. Virgil F. Smith, the grand master, was to have made the opening address, but he was unable to be present for the dedication. T. L. Jefferson, president of the home, in his talk Mr. Jefferson spoke of the significance of the gift of the flags and brooding on his subject talked of the good work of the home and what it was doing for the widows and children.

Capt. Grant Holds the Flag.

When the hostess of the beautiful big flag took place Capt. H. B. Grant, a veteran of the Civil War, had the honor of this ceremony. As the starry banner snapped in the breeze at the top of the flagpole, a cheering staff of boys went up. Quite appropriately, as cheering died out the children began the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner." As before, everybody helped out, following the music, the cheering was again taken up as the Governor stepped upon the platform.

Little Family Talk.

"My dear children, I'm not going to make a speech, but I'm just going to make a homely little talk," a family talk. The thing which just now impressed me so much was the tone of your fine childish voices as you sang that beautiful, beautiful old song a moment ago. To hear your piercing voices in using the words without grasping their real significance and importance, there are certainly, however, many problems which vitally affect the welfare of children which cannot be settled by individual women in their separate homes. They call for the co-operation of all the women of a community. The women of a town could, if they got together, control much of the life of the town. It is the children of the town as they are within their own walls. It would probably be an unpleasant revelation to most women to follow up questions from what school children are fed at recess and to trace to their source the candy and other foods which they carry."

before us, and yet it flutters over the known and the unknown alike. I think that it is to the memory of our fathers and the principles of our country to take off our hats in the presence of the flag. It is a privilege to be able to stand before the flag and to be able to say that we are proud to be Americans. The flag is a symbol of our country, and it is a privilege to be able to stand before it and to be able to say that we are proud to be Americans.

least of them, ye do it unto Me." I am going to end this talk with the prayer of "Tiny Tim," as I did last Saturday: "God bless everyone of us." After the applause had subsided, the Rev. H. D. Smart gave the benediction, and the children saluted the flag with a recitation of "All Hail Old Glory, the Red, White and Blue."

After leaving the stand, Gov. Willson turned to the master of ceremonies and said: "Have all the youngsters march past and I'll shake hands with every blessed child." The newspaper photographers then arranged for the board of trustees of the home, the governor and a few of the other gentlemen present to pose for a picture. The party composed of Gov. Willson, John H. Cowles, T. L. Jefferson, John L. Wheat, Dr. C. E. Dunn, T. A. Crawford, the Rev. R. D. Smart, T. F. Satterbeite, Jr., H. M. Reese, C. H. Dresler, Capt. H. B. Grant, C. A. Glpe, Maj. John H. Leathers, Henry Vogt, T. J. Adams and W. T. Hunter. The group was draped in flag and at the feet of the governor several of the children were placed. This juvenile group included Jennie Brown, Hobart and Homer Walling, twins, Willie Marshall and Dixie Tolbert. After the "snapping" was over, Gov. Willson backed up the flag and the children followed him and the procession of children filed past. As the kiddies grasped the executive hand the Governor spoke to each of them and the expert must make a quickie more closely after he had once decided to lie. Instead of that the distance of the rise became so much longer that even the expert must be very quick with the gun. And when nitro powders and modern choke bores added so many yards to the range of the gun the quail simply added that much to the length of his rise, and went the game several per cent. better for a margin of safety.

These and other new tricks too numerous to mention here, soon made the valley quail the most difficult of all the small game birds to capture by any fair means.

BURGLAR'S CURIOUS MISTAKE.

[London Evening Standard.]
 Jewelry and gold watches to the value of £400 ($2,600) have been handed in at Scotland Yard under extraordinary circumstances. A woman was traveling outside an omnibus from Paddington toward Edgware road carrying with her a brown paper parcel containing two pounds of soap. She alighted at Westbourne Grove, taking with her what she thought to be the parcel she had been carrying. During her journey a well-dressed man sat next to her, carrying a brown paper parcel. He left the omnibus a short time before she reached her destination. Reaching home she was astonished to find instead of the soap the jewelry and watches, which she conveyed to Scotland Yard. It has been ascertained by the police that the jewelry formed the proceeds of a burglary at Maiden Vale a week ago. It is believed that the man was on the way to the receiver at the time he made the singular exchange of parcels.

LINCOLN CABIN STORED IN WAREHOUSE HERE.

Famous Old Structure To Be Placed In Memorial Hall At Hodgenville Soon.

The famous Lincoln cabin, which is to occupy a place of honor on the interior of the marble Memorial Hall, now in course of construction on the Lincoln farm near Hodgenville, is still stored in a warehouse here. The cabin had been in Louisville for a year prior to the dedication ceremonies at the farm last February, but was taken back here and placed in position in honor of the occasion. Following the dedication it was again taken apart and the logs were brought to Louisville. This was made necessary by the repeated attempts of relic hunters to secure portions of the logs. A guard was constantly on duty about the old cabin from the time the Lincoln Farm Association was formed until the cabin was moved here and placed in the warehouse.

FAIRBANKS ARRIVES AT TOKIO, JAPAN.

Tokio, May 22.—Japan lost one distinguished foreigner and gained another today with the departure for London of the British Ambassador, Sir Claude MacDonald, and the arrival of the new ambassador, Sir Claude Fairbanks from San Francisco. Sir Claude MacDonald left for home by way of Siberia on a six-months' tour of duty. He was given an enthusiastic farewell reception. Mr. Fairbanks will be received in audience by the emperor. Later he will be the guest of honor at a banquet given by Premier Marquis Katsura.

THE WISE VALLEY QUAIL.

[T. S. Van Dyke in Outing Magazine.]
 With the rapid settlement of Southern California that began in 1866, writes T. S. Van Dyke, in Outing Magazine, came a new host of breeders with all the improvements of the day, and plenty of men behind them with time and money to keep them warm. Probably no game ever rose so quickly to the emergency as the valley quail. After spending the night in the dense shrubbery of the live oak grove he no longer spent the day in its shade, but soon after feeding soared away upward in a dark shaft to the tops of the ridges five hundred to a thousand feet. Here he kept in the

CHARGES CONSPIRACY

MRS. MORSE SAYS HUSBAND WAS WRONGFULLY HOUNDED.

Even the Courts Were Used, She Declares, To Ruin Man Who Paid Every Debt.

New York, May 22.—Mrs. Clementine Morse, wife of Charles W. Morse, the former banker, asserted in an interview to-day that long ago persons high in power vowed that they would ruin her husband and that they have kept their word against justice and truth.

Mrs. Morse declared that Government officials had boasted also they would ruin her husband's downfall, but Mrs. Morse said she did not believe the courts could be used as a party to the plans of her husband's enemies.

"How many people know that my husband has paid every dollar owed to every depositor in the Bank of North America?" she asked, adding:

"Of an indebtedness of $7,000,000 more than $5,000,000 has been paid and if Mr. Morse had his liberty he would not owe a penny to-day. It is incredible to me that a court can be used to destroy a man's property and his family made to atone for it."

Mrs. Morse said she had sold her jewelry gladly to pay the claims against her husband and one claim against her, which was absolute blackmail, but which was paid to avoid notoriety.

Practically all of the furnishings of the handsome home, at 725 Fifth avenue, Mrs. Morse said, had been sold for the benefit of the creditors and the house was about to be sold over her head.

"When I leave I shall have no home; I don't know where I will go," she added.

SENIORS OF GIRLS' HIGH SCHOOL TO PRESENT SPARKLING COMEDY AT THE MASONIC THEATER

Talking about press agents, now just listed to this from the fair press agent of the Girls' High School:

"It's coming next week! The senior play of the Girls' High School! Have you seen those cunning yellow tags? Oh, you, Rose! The play is called 'A Rose of Plymouth Town' and it is a sparkling comedy in four acts. The eight principal parts are to be taken by the most talented girls in the class of '09 and that means the play will be the biggest success of its kind ever given in this city. The plot is brimful of thrilling incidents and comical situations, and the action is such that the play seems to be one long series of climaxes. Of course, when a bunch of emulous schoolgirls tackle a play like this, there will be some 'rough' moments, but the girls in this play are unusually graceful and promise to make their 'stunt' one of the star features of the performance."

"A Rose of Plymouth Town" will be presented at the Masonic Theater next Friday night and Saturday matinee.

are adorable, and are sure to make a hit. Just imagine how charming the girls will look in quaint Puritan costumes with swishing little white caps! And then there will be Indiana! Sure 'nough bloodthirsty braves, with tomahawks and yells and all that sort of thing. Indian dances are always picturesque, but the Indian girls in this play are unusually graceful and promise to make their 'stunt' one of the star features of the performance.

HIGHWAYMEN

RELIEVE REGINALD HARRY LUSKY OF TWENTY CENTS.

Employees in City Engineer's Office Forced To Stand and Deliver At Point of Revolver.

While passing a vacant lot on Jefferson street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth streets, Reginald Harry Lusky, who is employed in the city engineer's office at the city hall, was held up by a highwayman shortly before 9 o'clock last night. He was robbed of 20 cents in money and a small silver watch.

The case also was reported to Capt. Foster, of the Fourth police district, and several policemen were sent to the scene to investigate.

They were furnished with a description of the robbers, but a search of the alleys and streets in the vicinity failed to disclose the whereabouts of the highwaymen.

After having relieved the young man of his valuables the highwaymen turned and fled bearing the loot. Mr. Lusky ran into the home of Detective Pat White, who resides at 1826 West Jefferson street, and told him of the holding.

The case also was reported to Capt. Foster, of the Fourth police district, and several policemen were sent to the scene to investigate.

NAVY COMES HIGH

Growth In Budget Since the Spanish War.

FIRST-CLASS FIGHTING SHIP
NOW COSTS $9,000,000.

QUITE A CONTRAST TO PERRY'S
$75,000 FLAGSHIP.

SPRING MANEUVER PLANS.

GOES FOR CHINESE BRIDE.

[Boston Journal.]
Spurning fond entreaties of a half dozen Occidental teachers in the Chinese Sunday school, Christian Church, Roxbury, where he presides, the Bible study, Howard May leaves on a journey to Hong Kong, China, where awaits a little blond-eyed maid, Lulu, daughter of the man who has been his teacher in the Sunday school. That young May will receive suitable honors is shown by the fact that Lulu's father has commanded her to wait for him until he returns from his journey to Hong Kong. The young man, who is now in his twenty-second year, is a native of Boston, and has been in the service of the Chinese Sunday school for several years. He is a very capable and energetic man, and has been very successful in his work. He is now on his way to Hong Kong, where he will spend some time with his bride, Lulu, who is a very beautiful and intelligent young woman. He is expected to return to Boston in a few weeks, and will then resume his duties as a teacher in the Sunday school.

When Commodore Perry walloped the British on Lake Erie he flew his flag from a ship that cost $75,000 to build and equip, and when Farragut sailed up the Mississippi in the Hartford the ship under him was worth but $300,000. To-day a first-class fighting ship costs $9,000,000. The difference well shows how much more costly war has become since Perry's day, observes a writer in the Baltimore Sun. Even a few years ago battleships were dirt cheap—comparatively speaking. The famous Maine, blown up in Havana harbor, cost Uncle Sam but $2,500,000, and the new Maine, built to replace her, in 1898, cost but $4,000,000. DeWey's flagship, the Olympia, cost $1,750,000, and Schley's, the New York, a very costly ship for those days—$1,855,000. The Oregon cost $1,300,000, and the Texas $1,800,000.

The famous old cruiser Baltimore, once the pride of the American navy, cost but $1,325,000. But those simple days are no more. It now costs as much to build one of our new ships as it did to launch a whole squadron. When, in 1897, the fifty-seventh Congress passed the act appropriating $31,250,000 there was a great cry of extravagance, and it was thought that the limit had been reached.

The following year the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, and like a bolt from the blue, the United States found itself forced to go to war. The country was not prepared, the navy was on the scantiest kind of a peace footing, and although the nation was to measure strength with a second-class power there was consternation everywhere.

This had its effect on Congress. While the regular appropriation bill for the navy carried $13,000,000, there was added a lump sum of $20,000,000 "for national defense" and an additional amount of $42,288,741 for the general improvement of the fleet and the purchase of new vessels wherever they could be found. In all the budget for the year of the war with Spain amounted to the enormous sum of $135,301,575.

These figures startled everyone, once the battle of Santiago had been won, and the last vestige of the Spanish sea power had been swept away. Not much was said, however, for the victories of DeWey and Schley were such as not to admit of criticism of the preparation that had made them possible.

There were crises of economy, but in the following year it was found impossible, so strong was public sentiment, to get the appropriation beneath $62,541,733. Just twice as much as the budget carried two short years previously.

Spanish War Gave Impetus.
This it might be said that the real birth of the modern navy of the United States was due to the war with Spain. Ever since that year there has been increasing activity in the rebuilding of the naval establishment, and for the last two years the appropriations for the maintenance of the navy have been greater than the heavy sum appropriated in the stirring days of 1898.

During the last decade the sums granted each year by Congress to the navy have been ever increasing, with only two exceptions, those being in the years 1904 and 1907. These exceptions to the general rule, however, were more than overcome by the bill of 1908, which was the greatest ever passed in the history of the country for the use of the navy.

From 1900 to 1908, inclusive, the expenditures of the navy of the United States have been as follows:
1900.....$20,582,700.00
1901.....$21,429,997.00
1902.....$22,000,000.00
1903.....$23,000,000.00
1904.....$24,000,000.00
1905.....$25,000,000.00
1906.....$26,000,000.00
1907.....$27,000,000.00
1908.....$28,000,000.00

It will be seen by this showing that since 1904 the appropriations for the navy have fallen below the $20,000,000 mark in any year, with the single exception of 1907, when less than half a million dollars stood in the way of a larger appropriation.

It was not until 1886 that the first boat of the new navy was authorized. Before that time the navy was composed of a few small craft, and the second-class battleship Texas, long since discarded as of small importance.

Two years later the first armored cruiser was authorized, and the new navy was the result. Both of these vessels took part in the naval engagement off Santiago in 1898, when the Spanish fleet was destroyed.

In 1890 the first of the big modern battleships was authorized. Congress, in the lesson of the Spanish war, was fresh in mind, did not hesitate over terms, but furnished the money necessary to build three first-class battleships. These eventually were the Indiana, Massachusetts and Oregon.

Advent of the Giants.
In 1892 the Iowa was provided for. In 1895, the Kearsarge and Kentucky, and in the following year the Alabama, Illinois and Wisconsin. There was a lapse of a year, but in 1898 three class ships were laid down, the Maine, Missouri and Ohio, while in the year succeeding the Georgia, Nebraska and Virginia were authorized for.

In addition, the naval bill of that year provided for the first of the powerful armored cruisers, and this was a feature of the American sea power. There were two of these laid down in 1899, the California and the West Virginia, and three additional in 1900, the Colorado, Maryland and South Dakota. The increase of the United States navy is the most dramatic fact in the history of this nation has been forced into taking its position as a world power. The war with Spain forced upon the American people the Philippines, Guam and Porto Rico. In addition it was necessary to take over Hawaii.

All these outlying possessions need protection, and to afford protection worthy of the name a powerful navy is necessary.

The Problem Solved For Plumbing.

You can have modern sanitary plumbing installed in your home at a very low cost, for our "All Iron Pipe" system enables any handy mechanic without previous experience to do the work. DON'T BE HELD UP for an exorbitant sum in order to possess these conveniences, for we will sell you the material at lowest wholesale prices. There is no mystery about the pipe work for plumbing. Look at the picture. The large vertical pipe is the stack. The smaller vertical pipe is the vent. All fixtures are trapped to prevent odor or sewer gas escaping into the rooms, and are so connected as to be properly vented. This is a fair type of sanitary installation. We will arrange any variations for you to supply you the most perfect arrangement for your home. Whether in the city, where you have running water and sewerage, or in the country, where you have to provide your own water system and dispose of your own sewerage, you can have these improvements. We will sell you all the material of all kinds needed, and tell you how to do the work. JUST SEND US A PLAN of your house for our FREE estimate of all the material required to put in these modern conveniences.

Hot Water and Steam-Heating Plants.

We will sell you a complete plant or a single fitting. Send us a diagram of building you wish to heat, and we will make you a price on all material, saving you 50 per cent. over any other prices.

LOW-DOWN CLOSETS

These closets are strictly our A-grade and perfect in every respect. Price includes all necessary fitting above floor, Vitreous Porcelain, Wash Down Bowl, with a hardwood seat and cover, nickel-plated strainer, an exceptionally handsome closet which could not be purchased elsewhere for double the amount we ask. Our price, $10.50

PROGRESSIVE JAPANESE ARE MAKING A NEW CITY OUT OF SEOUL AND ARE DOING WONDERS FOR ALL OF KOREA

NEW SUPREME COURT BUILDING AT T. SEOUL.

(Copyright, 1909, by Frank G. Carpenter.) Seoul, Korea, 1909.—I want to tell you what the Japanese are doing in Korea. They have taken the Hermit Kingdom by the neck, and are shaking its dry bones into action. They are establishing courts, abolishing autocracy and reorganizing the finances. They propose to build roads, to reforest the mountains, to open the mines and to turn this half-barren country into a garden. All these things are in their beginnings, but a start has been made and signs of progress are everywhere to be seen.

The New City of Seoul.

The capital, Seoul, is fast becoming a new city. When I came here twenty years ago, the trip from the seaport, Chemulpo, took over twelve hours, and I had to have a pony and eight men to bring myself and wife to the city. I rode the pony and the madame came in a chair, borne on the shoulders of four coolies, with a relay of four others to help them. Toward the end of the journey we had to push on for fear we might not get to Seoul before the gates closed. The city is surrounded by a massive wall nine miles in length and thirty feet high. At that time this wall was entered only by gates, and these were closed at night by heavy doors plated with iron, which were not opened again until the next day. We got in just in time to see the gates close. There was no hotel, and we had to be met by the soldiers of our legion, and were quartered there during our stay.

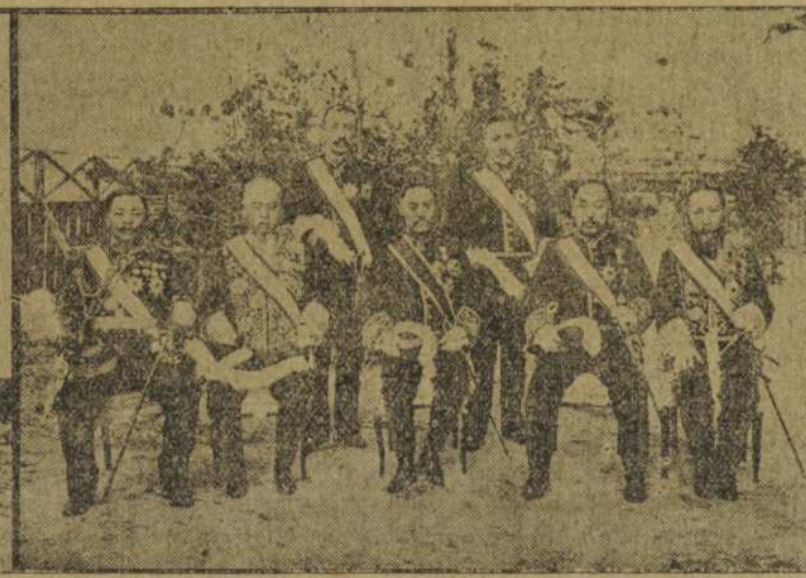

The city still has its walls, but the gates now stand open day and night, and an electric street car line runs through two of them and on into the country. An electric light globe prevents the closing of the one which we entered, and another gate has proved too small to accommodate the traffic and has been cut out by the Japanese, wide roads being made through the walls on each side. The gate itself, which is a temple-like structure with a double roof of heavy tiles, has been faced with stone, and it is now proposed to put a commercial museum in the soldiers' guardroom above it. In that old gate all the industries of the new Korea will be shown side by side with those of other nations, and the people will thus be taught the various methods of manufacture and sale.

Signal Fires Vs. Electricity.

As we came into Seoul that night we could see the signal fires blazing on the mountains which surround the city, and were told that they were the last of the long series of watch fires built upon the hills of the other parts of Korea to notify the king that the country was quiet and all was at peace. To-day there are watch fires no longer, but in their place Korea has its wireless telegraph stations and the capital is covered with telephone wires. One of the oldest buildings of the palace, in which the emperor now lives, has been turned into a telephone booth, and Japanese hells graph sit there and take messages from all parts of the city. There are telegraph wires to every large village, with more than 2,000 miles of line open and cables across to Japan.

Electric Lights and Street Cars.

The old Seoul was pitch dark at night. The law of the land was the lantern, and no one should go about after dark, only officials and foreigners and their servants being permitted to do so. Women were never seen on the streets in the daytime, and the night was spent in waiting for the king. When we went out we took the king of the legion to carry our lantern, and this consisted of a frame-work, holding a candle with a red white and blue gauze cloth thrown over it. The Seoul of to-day is fairly well lighted. Many of the stores keep open during the evening, and most of the houses have an oil lamp or an electric light globe at their front gate. Looking down the wide main streets of the city makes one think of one of the larger towns of our country, for the lights alone are to be seen and the low one-story buildings are lost in the darkness.

Seoul has now an electric car line run by Americans. It was put in long before the Japanese took hold of the Government, and about half of the stock belongs to the retired emperor, who has refused to sell out to the Japanese capitalists. The Koreans are now patronizing the road. At first they said it was magic, and a mob destroyed some of the cars. Their theory was that the line would prevent the spirits giving them rain. They said the cars were boats, and the gods, looking down from the skies, seeing them swimming to and fro through the streets, would say: "These people need no rain, for their city is swimming in water."

A somewhat similar feeling prevailed as to the magic in the telephone and telegraph systems. Many of the Korean women, knowing that speech went over the wires, thought the poles must contain spirits and that the sound coming from the wires was their voices. Some men mounted about it. The old mountain had lain there a wilderness for thousands of years. It had seen the wall built more than 500 years ago, and had watched the generations rise and fall from then until now. It remained for the Japanese to make it a beautiful park. They have cut roads through the pines and have built many pavilions, until now it is one of nature's most beautiful gardens. And the good fortune to be invited to a garden party given there by the resident general the other day. More than 2,000 of the high-class Koreans and Japanese officials were present. His excellency received us out in the palace grounds, where the grounds are as smooth as a floor. There are banks, brick school buildings, a post-office and all sorts of business establishments.

At one side of this section is a great frame office structure devoted to the resident general, who governs Korea, and back of it is the home of his official, with a thousand acres or more of land. The good fortune to be invited to a garden party given there by the resident general the other day. More than 2,000 of the high-class Koreans and Japanese officials were present. His excellency received us out in the palace grounds, where the grounds are as smooth as a floor. There are banks, brick school buildings, a post-office and all sorts of business establishments.

Not far from where I am living in the former section of Seoul is the new finance department. This is a fine two-story brick structure covered with stucco. It is built on an elevation, overlooking the palace in which the retired emperor lives, so that the clerks can see all that goes on inside the palace grounds. This is very offensive to his majesty, who has always objected to anyone looking over his walls, and has bought several foreign structures because they commanded such a view. He paid $200,000 for the French legation for this very reason and he has, I am told, several times tried to buy the American consulate, which is on a hill, lower down. Some men have even bought lots and started buildings in order to make his majesty buy them at high prices. Another fine Government building is that of the Supreme Court. This is somewhat similar to the structure of the finance department. It is situated on the main street, which runs between the east and west gates, and not far from a big two-story brick which is being built for a native Korean bank. That bank, by the way, marks one of the most wonderful changes which is going on here. Until lately no Korean was supposed to have any right to money. Every official squeezed the man below him, and if he did not give up a share of his goods upon demand had him whipped or tortured in some way or other until he did so. The most common punishment was a flexible paddle about as wide as the palm of your hand and ten or twelve feet in length. The man to be squeezed was stripped to the skin and laid face downward, or he was tied to a bench so that it was impossible for him to move. Then the paddlers would strike him so many blows on the thighs. The second or third always brought blood, and an hundred was supposed to mean death. Burning and bone crushing were other methods of torture, and men were kept in prison on false charges as means of extortion. Under such conditions the man who showed he had money was sure of persecution and all that he had to do was to get rid of it as fast as he could. The Japanese have done away with this squeezing, and the thousands of officials who lived upon it have now gone to the wall.

High Interest. I am surprised at the enormous interest which the Koreans are paying. Loans on good security are made at from 2 to 5 per cent. a month, and the unscrupulous Japanese money lenders are getting much more. It is only fair to say that the natives do likewise. A common way of loaning on property is to hand over the deed to the house or lot in case the loan is not paid and as, until now, there have been no means of registration, this means the transfer of the property. The Japanese should protect the Koreans as to such transactions. If they do not, all the lands and houses of the country will soon go into the hands of the former. The Koreans are great borrowers and they cannot resist the money temptation. They are not able to meet their obligations.

A Nation of Children. Indeed, it is up to the Japanese Government to protect the Koreans from one class of its subjects who are now overrunning the country. The Koreans are a nation of children. They have been so ground down in the past that they have not learned to hustle and to look out for themselves. They are wonderfully gentle and trusting, and the shrewd Japanese can easily take advantage of them. He is doing so today, notwithstanding the Government tries to prevent it, and the authorities should put on the screws and punish severely all such offenses. Prince Ito has tried to do this, even to the extent of sending back a large number of the Japanese who have come here, saying that they were not fit to be in the country.

It is this element that knocks the Korean about, cheats him out of his wages, and if possible, by means of money, takes his lands and lands. It is the low class element among the soldiers, scattered in small bands over the country away from their superior officers, who are the real danger to the many innocent Koreans under the name of insurgents; and which, if the Government does not pursue a more rigid policy, is likely to lose Japan its reputation as having the best, the kindest, the most refined and the most humane soldiery on earth. Indeed, it seems to me that Japan has in this low class element which has come to Korea a problem far more serious than its people think. If Prince Ito would transmit capital associations. These will have a central head, with about one hundred branches, and will issue small loans to needy farmers. The loans will be as low as 5% and may be secured by crops and chattel mortgages. All these things will tend to create thrift among the Koreans, which heretofore has been impossible on account of the squeezing and insecurity of all money. Indeed, one of the common Korean banks of the past has been the Mother Earth, and this especially so during the winter. When a farmer sold his crops and wanted to keep the money over until spring he would dig a pit six feet deep and four or more feet square; and at the first frost would put down a layer of coal and sprinkle earth and water over it. By morning it would be frozen stiff. The next night he could put away another layer of coins with mud on top. This would freeze and so he would go until he had a block of frozen earth as hard as ice, and with these coins he would go to the dollar. The work was done secretly and the result was such that it would take days to recover the coins.

BUSY TIME

For Shriners On Wednesday Afternoon, June 9.

AUTO RACES, REGIMENTAL REVIEW AND BAND CONCERT. BUILDING OWNERS AND OCCUPANTS SLOW DECORATING. COMMITTEE FEARS EFFECT.

By the addition of the automobile races to the program of the entertainment of the annual session of the Shrine, important changes have been made in the general arrangements heretofore decided upon. The automobile races, which promise to be one of the greatest attractions of the week, will take place at the Douglas Park track on Wednesday afternoon, June 9. There will be eight events in all, including a fifty-mile race for $100 gold and trophy. The track will be scraped of surface dirt and freely watered and rolled and it is declared by Homer George, manager of the race meeting, that some extra fast time should be made.

With the putting on of the races at Douglas Park, the parade and review, mobilized band concert and entertainment of patrol taking part in the exhibition drills, will all be transferred from the Louisville Jockey Club Park to the Douglas Track. Free To Shriners. While it is intended to charge the general public for the entertainment of the Shrine, the Shrine, and the women companions will pass the gates free of charge. The entertainment will start with a five-mile race at 8 o'clock in the afternoon and will wind up at about 6 o'clock with the band concert. It is estimated that a little over two hours will be taken up in the running of the races. Following this, all patrols attending the annual session will form in review before the imperial Potentate and party and repeat many of the maneuvers witnessed during the prize drives. This part of the program, under the direction of the parade and escort committee of which Judge James Gregory is chairman, William B. Trumbo, Jr., is chairman of the music committee which is in charge of arrangements for the band concert. There will be probably not less than thirty bands in Louisville during Shrine week. Natiello's Band is the official musical organization for the Shrine. Bands will be here and it is supposed all of them have been practicing for the concert of mobilized bands. Bands will participate in it will mean a musical feast such as has never before been enjoyed here.

Decorations Needed. It is planned to entertain the members of the patrols coming to Louisville with a luncheon on the same afternoon. This will be an all fresco affair, and promises to be an enjoyable occasion. The refreshment committee, under the chairmanship of W. F. Solger, has arranged for this function. The decoration committee, of which John A. Telford is chairman, is continuing a vigorous crusade among property owners in the central part of the city in an effort to have the buildings appropriately illuminated during Shrine week. So important is this matter considered that the executive committee, with Frank Fair at its head, has also taken up the matter. The local Shriners point out the great need for appropriate illuminations and decorations in the city, and that which will come most under the eyes of the visitors. It is admitted that there has not been the enthusiasm the occasion deserves.

The Shriners point out that this is the first convention of its magnitude which Louisville has ever entertained, and which the general public was not called upon to subscribe funds. It is furthermore emphasized that the Shrine is a religious and patriotic organization, and that the Shriners are concerned. The city cannot afford to leave decorations out of the entertainment features provided, it is maintained. So important has been considered the matter by the executive committee that it has instructed the decoration committee to be particularly lavish with its illuminations and decoration preparations. Thousands of dollars have been expended in street illuminations, and the decoration committee repeats its appeal to owners of stores and office buildings to properly equip the structures occupied or owned by them with illuminative devices.

MISSOURI LAW UPHELD. BUT NOT APPROVED. Supreme Court Hands Down Opinion On Act Limiting Salaries of Insurance Company Officers. Jefferson City, Mo., May 22.—The Missouri Supreme Court, sitting on the bench at the State Capitol, which denies licenses to insurance companies which pay any of their officers salaries in excess of $5,000. The act was passed two years ago and has been the subject of extended litigation. Today's decision was an appeal from three large Eastern companies for a writ of mandamus to compel the State Insurance Department to issue licenses to the companies. The writ was denied to the petitioners—the Equitable Life Assurance Society, the Prudential Insurance Company and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. While upholding the validity of the law the court declared that it was unwise legislation and recommended its repeal.

Choir To Sing Stabat Mater. The choir of the First Christian Church, augmented from the Oratorio Society and with special soloists, will sing Rossini's Stabat Mater at the church this evening at 7:45 o'clock, under the direction of R. Kratz Cox.

Remedies are Needed. Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through centuries, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature. You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

IN GOOD CAUSE. CLAY LODGE TO GIVE DELIGHTFUL PICNIC. Funds Derived To Be Used in Fight Against the "Great White Plague."

Although six weeks intervene before the anti-tuberculosis benefit to be given by the Knights of Pythias is held at Fontaine Ferry Park the date for the event having been set for July 3, work for its success is already well under way and the indications are that it will be one of the most elaborate affairs of the kind ever given in Louisville. Those in charge of it are hopeful of clearing $5,000 for the benefit of the crusade against tuberculosis being carried on in this city.

One of the features of the celebration, which is to take the form of an old-fashioned picnic of the occasion, day, will be the distribution of prizes. Merchandise valued at $1,000 has already been given for this purpose, a piano and a horse and carriage being on the list. Other prizes will be added constantly, so that those who attend will have an opportunity to participate in the awards of many valuable articles.

The Louisville Anti-Tuberculosis Association, which is closely affiliated with the Association Sanatorium, to which the proceeds of the benefit are being turned over, with City Lodge K. of P. and President W. C. Jones, following a conference with E. H. Bacon, vice chairman of the committee, have announced, announced that the association was much pleased with the efforts being made. F. A. Sampson, secretary of the association, has accepted the post of secretary of the general committee, and will have much to do in connection with the work of pulling off the big event. J. Tyler Davis, chancellor commander of Clay Lodge, has sent a letter to every member of the organization, telling of the details of the benefit and urging them to join in to make it a success. It is an occasion where everybody can join to help in the anti-tuberculosis warfare.

Kills Negro Burglar. Chattanooga, Tenn., May 22.—P. A. Brawner, member of the City, Excise Commission, shot and killed John Curry, a negro burglar, who invaded his bedroom at 230 o'clock this morning. He shot the negro three times, one bullet penetrating his lungs and another his heart. The police believe this negro was responsible for a series of daring burglaries of the last few weeks in the vicinity of Mr. Brawner's home.

SOCIETY LEAVING TOWN.

Louisvillians flocking to the country homes for the summer, while many will go to Europe or spend the time at some fashionable resort.

THE country homes are gradually being made ready for summer occupancy and society is flocking in many directions. The growing tendency of Louisville to have a country home for their chief residence during the summer months is becoming more and more marked each year. So many families that have always resided in town for at least six months out of the twelve have now discarded their town homes and are living in the country. Those who still have city homes close them much earlier than formerly. Quite a number will go abroad; others will take a cottage somewhere at the seaside or some summer resort, or take a cottage in one of the suburbs. The trolley cars have made all places accessible, and it would be hard indeed to find a lonely place or what is called "real country."

PRETTY WEDDING.

Miss Mattie Barba Richardson and Dr. Edgar Duff Burnett married last Wednesday evening at the Walnut-street Baptist church.

A PRETTY wedding was that of last Wednesday evening at the Walnut-street Baptist church, when Miss Mattie Barba Richardson became the bride of Dr. Edgar Duff Burnett. The church was attractively decorated in palms, ferns and lilies.

Dr. J. H. Burnett, the groom's father, of Tennessee, performed the impressive ceremony.

The bride's gown was a lovely white messaline satin, made princess style, and trimmed in pearl ornaments. She wore a full veil caught with a spray of lilies of the valley, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses.

Miss Lucinda Richardson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and was gowned in white chiffon bordered in light yellow and carried a bouquet of white sweet-peas.

Little Miss Virginia Barker, who was the flower girl, wore a lingerie white frock and carried a basket of white sweet-peas.

Prof. George J. Burnett, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., brother of the groom, was best man, and Dr. W. H. Long, Dr. G. H. Long, Dr. A. E. Weaver, and Mr. M. C. Vick were the ushers.

After a short wedding trip, Dr. Burnett and Mrs. Burnett will take an apartment for the summer at 111 East St. Catherine street.

The out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Molly Holdsworth, Hopkinsville, Mo., and Mrs. H. E. Davidson, Miss Mattie Barba Davidson and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Davidson, all of Glasgow, and Dr. G. H. Burnett, Springfield, Tenn., and Dr. J. H. Burnett and Prof. George J. Burnett, of Tennessee College, Murfreesboro, Tenn.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

MR. and MRS. FRANK E. SHIPPEN announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Truman, to Mr. John P. Cobb. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's sister at 111 East St. Catherine street, on June 15. The ceremony will be performed by Father Gunn, of Atlanta.

Miss Mary Brent Ormsby, of Meadowbrook, and Mr. John Marshall were quietly married last evening at 8 o'clock at the Beechmont Methodist church. The Rev. P. A. T. Casey performed the ceremony. The bride, who entered on the arm of Mr. Marshall, was dressed in white cloth and a lagoon hat trimmed in corn flowers. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. They left immediately after the ceremony for a ten days' trip East, after which they will be at home at 106 Tenny avenue, Meadowbrook.

Denver's Great Hospital for Consumptives

Louisville Men Aided In Founding Institution and Have Been Prominent In Its Management.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.] DENVER, Col., May 19.—Nestling at the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, in this city, is one of the great sanatoria with which the American people are combating the dread white plague. Louisville should have more than a passing interest in the National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives, for it was in the Bluegrass metropolis, just ten years ago, that the breath of life was given this great institution in which over 1,500 persons afflicted with tuberculosis, have since been treated, and over 1,200 restored to health and restored to their homes. In addition to aiding with their contributions, Louisvillians have also had a leading part in the hospital's establishment and management.

Despite the idea which might be gotten from its name, the hospital's doors are open to those of all religious beliefs, but none but the poor may enter. None who can pay is accepted as a patient.

Its Growth Rapid.

Under the guidance and management of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, the institution has made rapid strides. A single building at the opening ten years ago with a capacity of thirty-five patients, it consists now of a group of seven modern structures, constituting with the grounds, an investment of $250,000. The capacity now is 135 patients.

As it has been found that those in the advanced stages of the disease are not benefited by the Colorado climate; that death is hastened by the tedious and wear of the trip and the sudden change to this high altitude; and as it was found necessary to prevent an influx of the indigent sick until there should be room in the hospital, rules had of necessity to be established regulating the method of the admission of patients.

Among these rules is this: That no patient must be sent to Colorado for admission except application be first made to the trustees of or near the city of the applicant's residence. There are such trustees in every large city of the country, several in every State, and under their guidance the applicant must be examined at the city of his residence, and from this examination the medical advisory board at Denver must deduct that the patient can be benefited by care and treatment in the institution here. This procedure does not consume more than five days in its entirety. Anyone coming to Denver without first having so applied is refused admission to the hospital. This has proved an imperative necessity for the patient, for the hospital, and for Denver. The present member of this board from Kentucky is Fred Levy.

Since January of this year, five patients have been sent to the institution from Louisville and three others are to go in the near future.

Not only does the hospital give to the poor, absolutely without cost, the same advantages the rich enjoy, and the greatest care and treatment advanced medical science can furnish, but it goes far beyond. A graded English school furnishes patients who need it the opportunity for mental advancement. To those who must of necessity remain in Colorado or in other parts of the Rocky Mountain altitudes of the charitable endeavors of Louisville men, somewhat of the history of the hospital may be of interest in Kentucky. It was in 1889 that a group of philanthropic Denverites determined to give relief to conditions which were then becoming somewhat appalling. Hundreds attacked by the white plague sought Denver's health-breathing, life-giving climate. It was the Mecca where the enfeebled searcher for health hoped to combat the progress of the disease. There was no place for care or treatment, and so they passed to that stage which is beyond help. The Denver Jewish relief societies were unable to meet further demands upon them. So out of this constant presence of illness and insistent pressure for help came the thought of a structure which should be a haven and refuge for the curable and destitute stricken.

Over $40,000 was raised, mostly by local subscriptions from the comparatively few Denver Jewish people. With it grounds were bought and a hospital building erected. It had been the unselfish idea that the support should come entirely from those who built the structure. Just as with infinite trouble it was completed, in 1893, came the panic. With silver demonstated, the hard times struck Colorado as they did no other State. Mines closed. Merchants succumbed. From that day on and for several years to come the building stood "like the wrath of a broken hope," the structure of a shadowed promise. As a mockery of the thought that had so nobly conceived it, it remained closed. Appeals were made to various cities of the East, to the society and to that, to help take care of these people, their own unfortunates, who flocked to Denver for relief; but all to no avail.

At last, in the year 1898, the Denver Lodge of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith instructed its delegates to demand that the order of which it was a part should assume the burden and responsibility. This fraternal body, which has among its aims the success of the oppressed, the uplift of the fallen, the protection of the widow and orphan, the sheltering of the aged, the relief of the stricken and the healing of the sick, under whose sheltering wings this institution should find guardianship.

The order is divided into seven districts in this country. Denver and Louisville both belonged to its second division, which was to meet at its annual convention at Louisville in May, 1899. The Denver delegates went to Louisville with the determination to succeed, and in impassioned words presented to the Grand Lodge the want and the suffering, the torture and death that was the portion of those who came to Denver from other cities. They painted in glowing words the spectacle of this building, standing idle, its portals closed, and just outside its doors those who might be cured for victims of the dread plague.

Kentucky delegates, were among those who came to the aid of the Denverites in the convention. Some of them have since passed away, among them Moses Levy and Nathan M. Uri, who were most ardent supporters.

There was none but desired to give the relief. The fear that the burden would prove too great, however, made many hesitate. Finally a committee, with Nathan M. Uri as its chairman, was appointed to further consider the hospital proposition and report back to the convention. Unanimously that committee recommended the appointment of a provisional board of seven with full authority, under the guiding hand of the District Grand Lodge, to collect money and open the institution as speedily as possible. This committee with Nathan M. Uri at its head championed the poor sufferers, and fought for speedy action.

Finally the convention unanimously determined upon the adoption of its recommendation. Meyer Friedman, president of the district for that year, was authorized to name the provisional board. At its head he placed Samuel Grabfelder, then of Louisville, now of Philadelphia, who proved a splendid executive and is still president of the institution. In June of that year the provisional board was named. It consisted of Samuel Grabfelder, of Louisville; Sol. W. Levi, of Cincinnati; Louis Anfinger, of Denver; Sol. S. Kiser, of Indianapolis; Ben Altheimer, of St. Louis; Dr. S. Wolfenstein, of Cleveland; and Alfred Muller, of Denver. By December enough money had been raised to open the institution.

On December 10, 1899, with great numbers present from all parts of the country, with messages from all parts of the world, the formal opening took place. The skies had been cloudy all day, but as the president stood in one of the wards and uttered the words, "I dedicate this building to God," a brilliant ray of sunshine like a benison from above pierced the clouds. It was like God's approval upon the work.

Whole Order Behind It. A few months thereafter the quinquennial convention of the entire order of B'nai B'rith met at Chicago, and at the request of District No. 2 adopted the institution as the ward of the order. The order gave it its title, "The National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives," and with it, under the guardianship of the order, absolute autonomy, with an independent national board of trustees of thirty-five. In this adoption the order demanded no particular rights; it asked no special privileges; its purpose being only to benefit humanity. From the first but two fundamental things were insisted on. They were that "there shall be no charge of any kind to any patient admitted to the hospital," and that "there shall be no creed distinction in the admission of patients."

A Louisvillian, Dr. Moses Collins, has been superintendent and in charge of the institution's internal affairs for more than nine years.

ON THE WAY TO THE SHOW.

[Benjamin Hard in the Baltimore Sun.] Ah, little boy on the way to the show, Take hold my hand and let me go; Take me back there in the dream with you. To the trapeze men with their derring-do, The fairlike ladies in skirts of lace And the bareback horse with his ambling pace; Let me go back, little boy, to-day Where the cages glow in their red array! Ah, little boy, with the cheeks aglow, Somebody's taking you out to the show, Somebody's swinging your hand, and I Can feel as you do 'neath the sweet May sky. With the golden vision before my ken Of a little lad off to the show again: Take hold my hand and let me be, Child of the lightheart, a lad with thee! Take hold my hand and lead me, dear, To the tents of the dreams of yesterday; The ringmaster cracking his long, little whip, The clown on his pony, with many a stip, Mid a roar from the benches around whose span giving climate. It was the Mecca where the enfeebled searcher for health hoped to combat the progress of the disease. A PAGE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Our Own Corner

THIS department is being conducted for all kinds of contributions from children. Original poems, fables, compositions, smart sayings of children, original drawings, puzzles, etc.—in fact, anything interesting that the readers of this page will send in—will be published.

Contributions from the children are asked, and should be addressed to "Our Own Corner," Children's Page, Courier-Journal.

New headings for this department are desired, and the best and most original ones sent in will be used at the top of this department. Do not make them too large.

The drawing this week was made by Virginia Hudson, of Versailles, Ky.

NOTICE

The editor wishes to caution the contributors to this department not to send any but original work, either in compositions, puzzles, drawings, poems or anything else.

Drawings should be in black ink on smooth white paper. Those drawn in pencil or blue ink on brown or colored paper, blotters or cardboard, cannot be used.

Remember that you have no right to sign your name to anything that is not original, so be very careful in this matter.

Be sure to mark your contributions each time with the word "original." In sending in contributions to the Children's Page, always write on one side of the paper only, and sign your name and address legibly at the bottom of the contribution.

THE SHEPHERD BOY.

There was once a time when a little boy was a shepherd. He had a big dog and a little lamb. This dog was very faithful to him.

One day the master sent him out with a large bunch of sheep and lambs. He took them over the hill to the blue-grass pasture, where there was a big hill. That night when he let down the bars of a gate and was coming down the road with his big dog and hooked came to the barn gate. His master saw him and went and opened the gate so that the sheep would not get out.

He opened the gate and said, "All right, my boy, you can go home now." So off he started home with his big dog. When he got home his mother was so glad he had come home she kissed him and hugged him. He ate his supper and lay down in his mother's lap to go to sleep. While he was lying there his mother began to read stories to him. While she was reading to him the man came in and said: "That boy has stolen my lamb."

The boy then awoke and said: "No, I haven't stolen it."

The boy began to cry and ran to his mother. The man wanted to get the boy, but his mother wouldn't let him, so off he went.

The little boy was so excited he couldn't sleep, but he went to bed. About 3 o'clock he got up real quiet, and went down to the dog kennel and let the dog out. And off he started with his lantern and the dog.

He went up a long, shady lane, which was very dark, but he wasn't thinking about anything but that lamb. I expect we little boys and girls would have cried, but he did not. He went the same way he had come so that he might see the lamb.

At the foot of a great hill were many stones and large rocks hanging out, which were very rough and ragged. He heard the little lamb bleat. He tried to get down to where the little lamb lay, but while trying to climb down he lost his hold on the rocks, fell down a small distance which hurt him real bad.

He lay suffering for a few minutes, meaning of the sweet word "Charge!"

Pride of the Household.

MILDRED DOROTHEA SCHLITZ.
Pretty 15-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schlitz, of 1046 South Eighteenth street.

In Hebrew, and papa told me that what you call in English charity you name in Hebrew "Zadoko," which means, in English justice in plain language. When the Bible says to give "Zadoko" means to be just to your fellow man. Therefore man! if you ever do any charitable work know that you merely do your duty as a man and your obligations to do what is just and right and you have no reason to be more proud by accomplishing it than if you perform any other of your duties as a man. If not, know that you failed to do your right duty and your obligations to your less fortunate man. MOLLIE STERN. (Age 11 years.)

POOR MR. ROBIN.

In spring here, said Mr. Robin And he felt the gentle breeze; Yes it's here, and now I'll sing. But the next day, He thought he would freeze. And a wiser bird than him or the rest Said to stay South longer was the best. CLIFTON GAUSS. (Age 11 years.)

One night I had stayed up very late. I had been talking about the heroic deeds of freedom. Soon I fell asleep and dreamt this: I was lying in bed in a boardinghouse in New York. I hadn't gone to sleep yet, for I was talking to my sister about going to Brooklyn the next day, and then to the cities of the United States. While I was talking I heard a rap at the door and someone call, "Get up quickly! The hotel's on fire!" I leaped out of bed, dressed quickly, and ran for the door only to find the hall ablaze. I ran to the windows, but there was no fire-escape. I gave a scream and fell to the floor, my face as white as ashes. But someone had heard me scream, for the next moment I was in the arms of a brave man. He quickly descended, and was going up again when the ladder broke, and this brave, young man fell heavily to the ground. His comrades rushed to his assistance, only to find him dead. I gave a fearful shriek and woke up. I was very glad this was only a dream. FANNIE MARKS. (Aged 14 years.)

WHY HELEN WAS LATE.

The teacher had called order in the schoolroom. When a dark beautiful girl walked in and took her seat without looking around, the teacher looked up to her desk and said: "Helen!"

The girl looked up at her with eyes full of tears. "I hate to have to punish you," went on the teacher, "but you know the rules."

"Yes, I will take the punishment," At that moment the teacher was called out of the room. A fair little beauty stole up to Helen and whispered in her ear:

"May I tell Helen," she asked. "No, Deloris; for Margaret's sake, no."

"Yes, but you will be punished," went on the girl. "I don't matter. Go to your sister and tell her that I forgive her; but I shall not forget, and the day will come when she will remember what I have said, so please, say it."

"But she will not forget," said a voice in the cloakroom that evening after school was dismissed. "Vacation time was over. All the scholars were in their seats when the teacher's voice was heard, saying that she would give a prize to the one that could write the best composition. The girls all said that it was not worth trying, for as long as Margaret L. was trying she would be sure to get it. On the day that the prize was to be given away a note was put in the teacher's hand by Deloris L.

The teacher said, "I will read it and see what she has to tell me."

"Dear Teacher—I want to tell you something. I want to tell you what made Helen late that day last June, as she was coming to school. She met Margaret and my sister told her that Miss Edna W. wanted her at Four street, and of course Helen went, and when she got there Edna was nowhere to be seen. Of course, Helen suspected Margaret of telling a lie, and I wanted to tell you, but she would not let me. The reason Margaret does not like Helen is because before Helen moved here she and Margaret went to the same school and Helen won a prize Margaret wanted, and that is all."

"Well, I will just declare," said the teacher. "So that is the reason. We shall see who shall get the prize to-day."

When the compositions were read the teacher said: "I want to tell you all a story." So she read the note and all the girls said: "Give it to Helen!"

Margaret cried so hard after she got home that her father sent her to a college in New York. So this ends my story. MINNIE DUNN. (Original.)

THE COMING OF THE CIRCUS.

There was a great uproar in the Randolph House, for the "circus" was coming to town.

There was Jane and Tommy, Joe and Letty, who thought there was nothing better than the "circus."

Although Jane was sweet 16 and her thoughts were about boys, she thought she would like to join the crowd, too.

So the day was set and grandma got the lunches ready.

There was such a fuss and tussel to get Jane's hair pulled right and to get Tommy's necktie tied, also Joe and Letty into their new socks and slippers that Mrs. Randolph quite forgot the lunchbasket. They got their lunch at the hotel. MAY KIRK. (Aged 13 years.)

Prize Winners.

The correct answers to the English Authors' Puzzle published two weeks ago are:

"Lamb, Dickens, Bacon, Wordsworth." The first prize, $1, is awarded to Martha Belle Hampson, of 12 Jane street, Crescent Hill. She sent in the following answer:

Mary had a little "Lamb." It was "Dickens" for to follow. His "Bacon" was worth a cent. Or his "Wordsworth" a dollar.

The second prize, a book, goes to W. P. Annis, Jr., of 2404 Magazine street. The third prize, also a book, is given to Edith T. Parker, of 322 West Main street.

Notice—Prize winners living in Louisville will please call at the Courier-Journal editorial rooms on Tuesday afternoon, between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock, else the prize will be forfeited.

Contest Department.

Women's Wearing Apparel.

What four articles of women's dress are there? A first prize of $1 is offered for the most successful answer, and a second and a third prize of a book will be given for the second-best answer. Answers must not be sent later than next Thursday, and should be addressed to the Contest Department, Children's Page, Courier-Journal. The prize-winners will be announced two weeks later. No one should call unless they see their names printed as prize winners. Answers must not be sent in the handwriting of parents or elders or written on a typewriter.

The Strange Adventure Of a Kitchen Range.

By W. L. LARNED.

I'M JUST as hungry as I can be," yelled Cuthbert; "here it is 6 o'clock and the folks are not in sight." Catherine sniffed the air disdainfully. "Perhaps you are ignorant of the fact that I can cook a little myself," she retorted; "suppose we try our hand at household slavery. You may begin by building a fire in the range."

"Please don't cook yourself," chuckled Cuthbert with a grimace, "but as for me, I think I might assist in that. Ho, for the 'Sign of the Kitchen Range!'"

The two children darted down the stairs and out into the street. He lurched forward on his short legs and tumbled the two children flat upon him; and a second later, stove and children were whirling upward, through plaster, laths and shingles.

"Cheese-e!" yelled Cuthbert. "Cheese-e!" squealed Catherine. "Free at last!" grunted the kitchen range.

They were sailing along through the air at marvelous speed. "Your father and mother will soon be out of range," laughed Mr. Cook Stove, with amiable self-satisfaction at his own pun. "It's about time something occurred. I've been a prisoner in that house for fifteen years—fifteen, just think of it!"

"Now I will return to the land of my birth. In the long ago people told me that I was the likeliest young range in Cookalovia. I could roast a goose with the best of them, and father and mother would be proud of me."

"Let me go back to whence I came," he sniffed. "Your gas tanks in Cookalovia are too bombastic. I want you to be simple and sane. I will need you to help me at least a week to prepare the royal viands and to see us through the payment of the Royal Gas Bill, which must be something terrific."

It happened now that Catherine and Cuthbert came to the rescue. "Quick!" whispered Catherine. "Quick!" whispered Cuthbert. He poured the contents of a royal lamp into the stove and away they went through palatial doughnuts and vanilla wafers and rye bread.

"It was a wonderful voyage," Cuthbert commented afterward, when they were home again in the little unroyal kitchen. "I quite forgot that I was hungry."

"Yes," said Catherine. "I never once thought of apple pie or Welsh rarebit." As for the Kitchen Range, he was too busy warming Kitten-kitten to ever notice them at all.

A FEATHERED FISHERMAN. The kingfisher is a lovely bird—one of nature's feathered beauties. He has certainly the most delicately tinted plumage of any bird now breeding.

To see the kingfisher dart down the river at express speed, as I have done, is to witness a flash of variegated colors—a kind of animated rainbow. It is impossible to distinguish the colors when the bird is on the wing. To really see him you must watch him sitting on the branch of a tree overlooking some stream or river, or, what is not so picturesque, see him "stuffed" in some museum.

"To see him sitting," etc. Ah, there's the rub. He is a very shy bird. He is not like the peris, sparrow, that minature bundle of cheek. If you wish to see the kingfisher in his native haunt you will need patience and silence. At the least noise the bird is gone like a dash.

He very much dislikes your presence in his domain. The Sandringham stream is an ideal spot for him, because of its seclusion and because a long stretch of it is protected from undesirable marauders.

Now suppose, after much watching and waiting, we succeed in seeing this beautiful bird. Most probably he will be sitting on some branch overhanging the stream, absolutely still. He keeps his sharp eyes steady down on the river. Suddenly, like a shot out of a gun, he dives into the water. As suddenly he reappears, his radiant plumage all adrip with a flash in his mouth. He is a most expert angler. He rarely, if ever, misses his catch.

"Old fogey—old fogey!" they called, derisively. The Rip Van Winkle Range of Cookalovia—been asleep in a stream of oil down upon the kindling wood. "Hurrah!" shouted the kitchen range.

When Catherine and her brother looked, they saw that the crowd was composed of gas ranges of every size and shape.

"They're making fun of you!" declared the girl, reproachfully. "Strangers—strangers!" Mr. Range was muttering to himself.

He looked quite shabby and worn out as he stood there, and his two comrades instinctively felt a pang of regret that his humiliation should be so deep.

"Come with us to the King," shouted a dozen gas ranges in unison. "He will surely make you court jester."

"He looks as if he needed Court Plaster," volunteered another ingrate, snickering.

"Let's go!" spoke up Catherine. "Perhaps the King will be more considerate."

With a howling mob at their heels, composed not only of gas cooking stoves, but new-fangled gas heaters and complicated wringing machines, the three wanderers walked down the street in the direction of the royal palace.

Mr. Range seemed dazed. He looked from one side to the other, shaking his head all the while.

Both Catherine and Cuthbert stood wavering with mingled delight and astonishment on the steps of the royal palace. Instead of brick or stone, the building was composed of leaves of bread. The roof was tiled with vanilla wafers, and there were profuse mural designs woven out of doughnuts and cream puffs.

The two children were not prepared for the surprise that came soon afterward; they had pictured the King in their minds as some great personage, broad-chested and crowned, with flowing robes and a lordly mien.

When the real King of Cookalovia did appear at the top of the royal steps, as a white-capped, apron-clad chef, with a large nose and a small, round, rosy face, the children were wide awake. Before the others could reach the deck it was in possession of a hundred natives.

They were armed with muskets and spears and clubs, and the instant the alarm was given there was a rush to board the ship. Only four of her crew were wide awake. Before the others could reach the deck it was in possession of a hundred natives.

I am not going to give you all the particulars of what occurred. They were published in an Australian newspaper a few weeks later, but they were not for boys and girls to read. Tom and Jim were among the first on deck, and as soon as he saw that the ship was lost the old sailor drove the boy up the rigging of the foremast and followed after. A native followed him, but did not offer to molest him. Indeed, it was soon shown that he was there to protect the two. The ship was carried in fifteen minutes. At the end of half an hour Tom and Jim were alone on the deck.

Upon this he crawled to gaze sternly upon the visitors; his interests, however, seemed to center on Mr. Range. "Where in the wide world did you come from?" asked the Chef-King. "I've been in the service for fifteen years," answered Mr. Range. "When an opportunity came for me to return to the land of my birth I did so, only to find that everything has changed. The Chef-King was thoughtful for a few moments, tickling his long French mustache with the end of the soup ladle. Finally, he spoke again. "There are royal visitors at court to-day," he declared. "It is my intention to give them a great spread in the palace after midnight. Polish your shoes up a bit, promise not to smoke, and I'll allow you to heat the royal coffee. As a novelty, I can think of nothing that would amuse my friends more than yourself."

There was a great shuffling and moving, and as Catherine and her brother watched their old friend, who was polished up until his brown old sides fairly shone.

"I hope nothing will put a damper on the occasion," he gulped between sips. The children were invited to sit at the banquet table with the other guests, and when they took their seats a bright picture that everyone saw.

It came time for the royal feast to be brought to the table; a grinning servant, dressed in a livery of red and white, led the way. The Chef-King, who was seated at the head of the table, looked at the children and said: "Oh, Lord and Master," he yelled, "there has been a terrible accident. The gas tank exploded and all our corps of highly respected ranges are out of commission; of course, they are out of the royal repast, where there is no gas."

Now comes the very remarkable part of the story. While the important gas ranges were hopping about in all stages of abject embarrassment at their helplessness, it suddenly occurred to the Chef-King that old Cook Stove could do the work all right. There he stood, in an out-of-the-way corner, with a coffee pot on top of him, and a gas pipe at his side, and he was singing away for all it was worth.

A great deal of wood was thrown into him immediately, and over his beneficent glow the royal feast was at last prepared.

Mr. Stove was fired and kindled, and heated and sizzled until he grew red in the face from exertion; once he came very near scorching something—a favorite trick of his when adverse circumstances made him hot. But thanks to a corps of watchful cooks, the dinner came off without a hitch.

"You have saved the day all right," said Chef-King in a congratulatory way. Now what can I do for you?"

Mr. Range wiped his perspiring forehead. "Let me go back to whence I came," he sniffed. "Your gas tanks in Cookalovia are too bombastic. I want you to be simple and sane. I will need you to help me at least a week to prepare the royal viands and to see us through the payment of the Royal Gas Bill, which must be something terrific."

The gas tank exploded and all our corps of highly respected ranges are out of commission; of course, they are out of the royal repast, where there is no gas."

Now comes the very remarkable part of the story. While the important gas ranges were hopping about in all stages of abject embarrassment at their helplessness, it suddenly occurred to the Chef-King that old Cook Stove could do the work all right. There he stood, in an out-of-the-way corner, with a coffee pot on top of him, and a gas pipe at his side, and he was singing away for all it was worth.

A great deal of wood was thrown into him immediately, and over his beneficent glow the royal feast was at last prepared.

Mr. Stove was fired and kindled, and heated and sizzled until he grew red in the face from exertion; once he came very near scorching something—a favorite trick of his when adverse circumstances made him hot. But thanks to a corps of watchful cooks, the dinner came off without a hitch.

"You have saved the day all right," said Chef-King in a congratulatory way. Now what can I do for you?"

Mr. Range wiped his perspiring forehead. "Let me go back to whence I came," he sniffed. "Your gas tanks in Cookalovia are too bombastic. I want you to be simple and sane. I will need you to help me at least a week to prepare the royal viands and to see us through the payment of the Royal Gas Bill, which must be something terrific."

It happened now that Catherine and Cuthbert came to the rescue. "Quick!" whispered Catherine. "Quick!" whispered Cuthbert. He poured the contents of a royal lamp into the stove and away they went through palatial doughnuts and vanilla wafers and rye bread.

"It was a wonderful voyage," Cuthbert commented afterward, when they were home again in the little unroyal kitchen. "I quite forgot that I was hungry."

"Yes," said Catherine. "I never once thought of apple pie or Welsh rarebit." As for the Kitchen Range, he was too busy warming Kitten-kitten to ever notice them at all.

A FEATHERED FISHERMAN. The kingfisher is a lovely bird—one of nature's feathered beauties. He has certainly the most delicately tinted plumage of any bird now breeding.

To see the kingfisher dart down the river at express speed, as I have done, is to witness a flash of variegated colors—a kind of animated rainbow. It is impossible to distinguish the colors when the bird is on the wing. To really see him you must watch him sitting on the branch of a tree overlooking some stream or river, or, what is not so picturesque, see him "stuffed" in some museum.

"To see him sitting," etc. Ah, there's the rub. He is a very shy bird. He is not like the peris, sparrow, that minature bundle of cheek. If you wish to see the kingfisher in his native haunt you will need patience and silence. At the least noise the bird is gone like a dash.

He very much dislikes your presence in his domain. The Sandringham stream is an ideal spot for him, because of its seclusion and because a long stretch of it is protected from undesirable marauders.

Now suppose, after much watching and waiting, we succeed in seeing this beautiful bird. Most probably he will be sitting on some branch overhanging the stream, absolutely still. He keeps his sharp eyes steady down on the river. Suddenly, like a shot out of a gun, he dives into the water. As suddenly he reappears, his radiant plumage all adrip with a flash in his mouth. He is a most expert angler. He rarely, if ever, misses his catch.

"Old fogey—old fogey!" they called, derisively. The Rip Van Winkle Range of Cookalovia—been asleep in a stream of oil down upon the kindling wood. "Hurrah!" shouted the kitchen range.

When Catherine and her brother looked, they saw that the crowd was composed of gas ranges of every size and shape.

"They're making fun of you!" declared the girl, reproachfully. "Strangers—strangers!" Mr. Range was muttering to himself.

He looked quite shabby and worn out as he stood there, and his two comrades instinctively felt a pang of regret that his humiliation should be so deep.

"Come with us to the King," shouted a dozen gas ranges in unison. "He will surely make you court jester."

"He looks as if he needed Court Plaster," volunteered another ingrate, snickering.

"Let's go!" spoke up Catherine. "Perhaps the King will be more considerate."

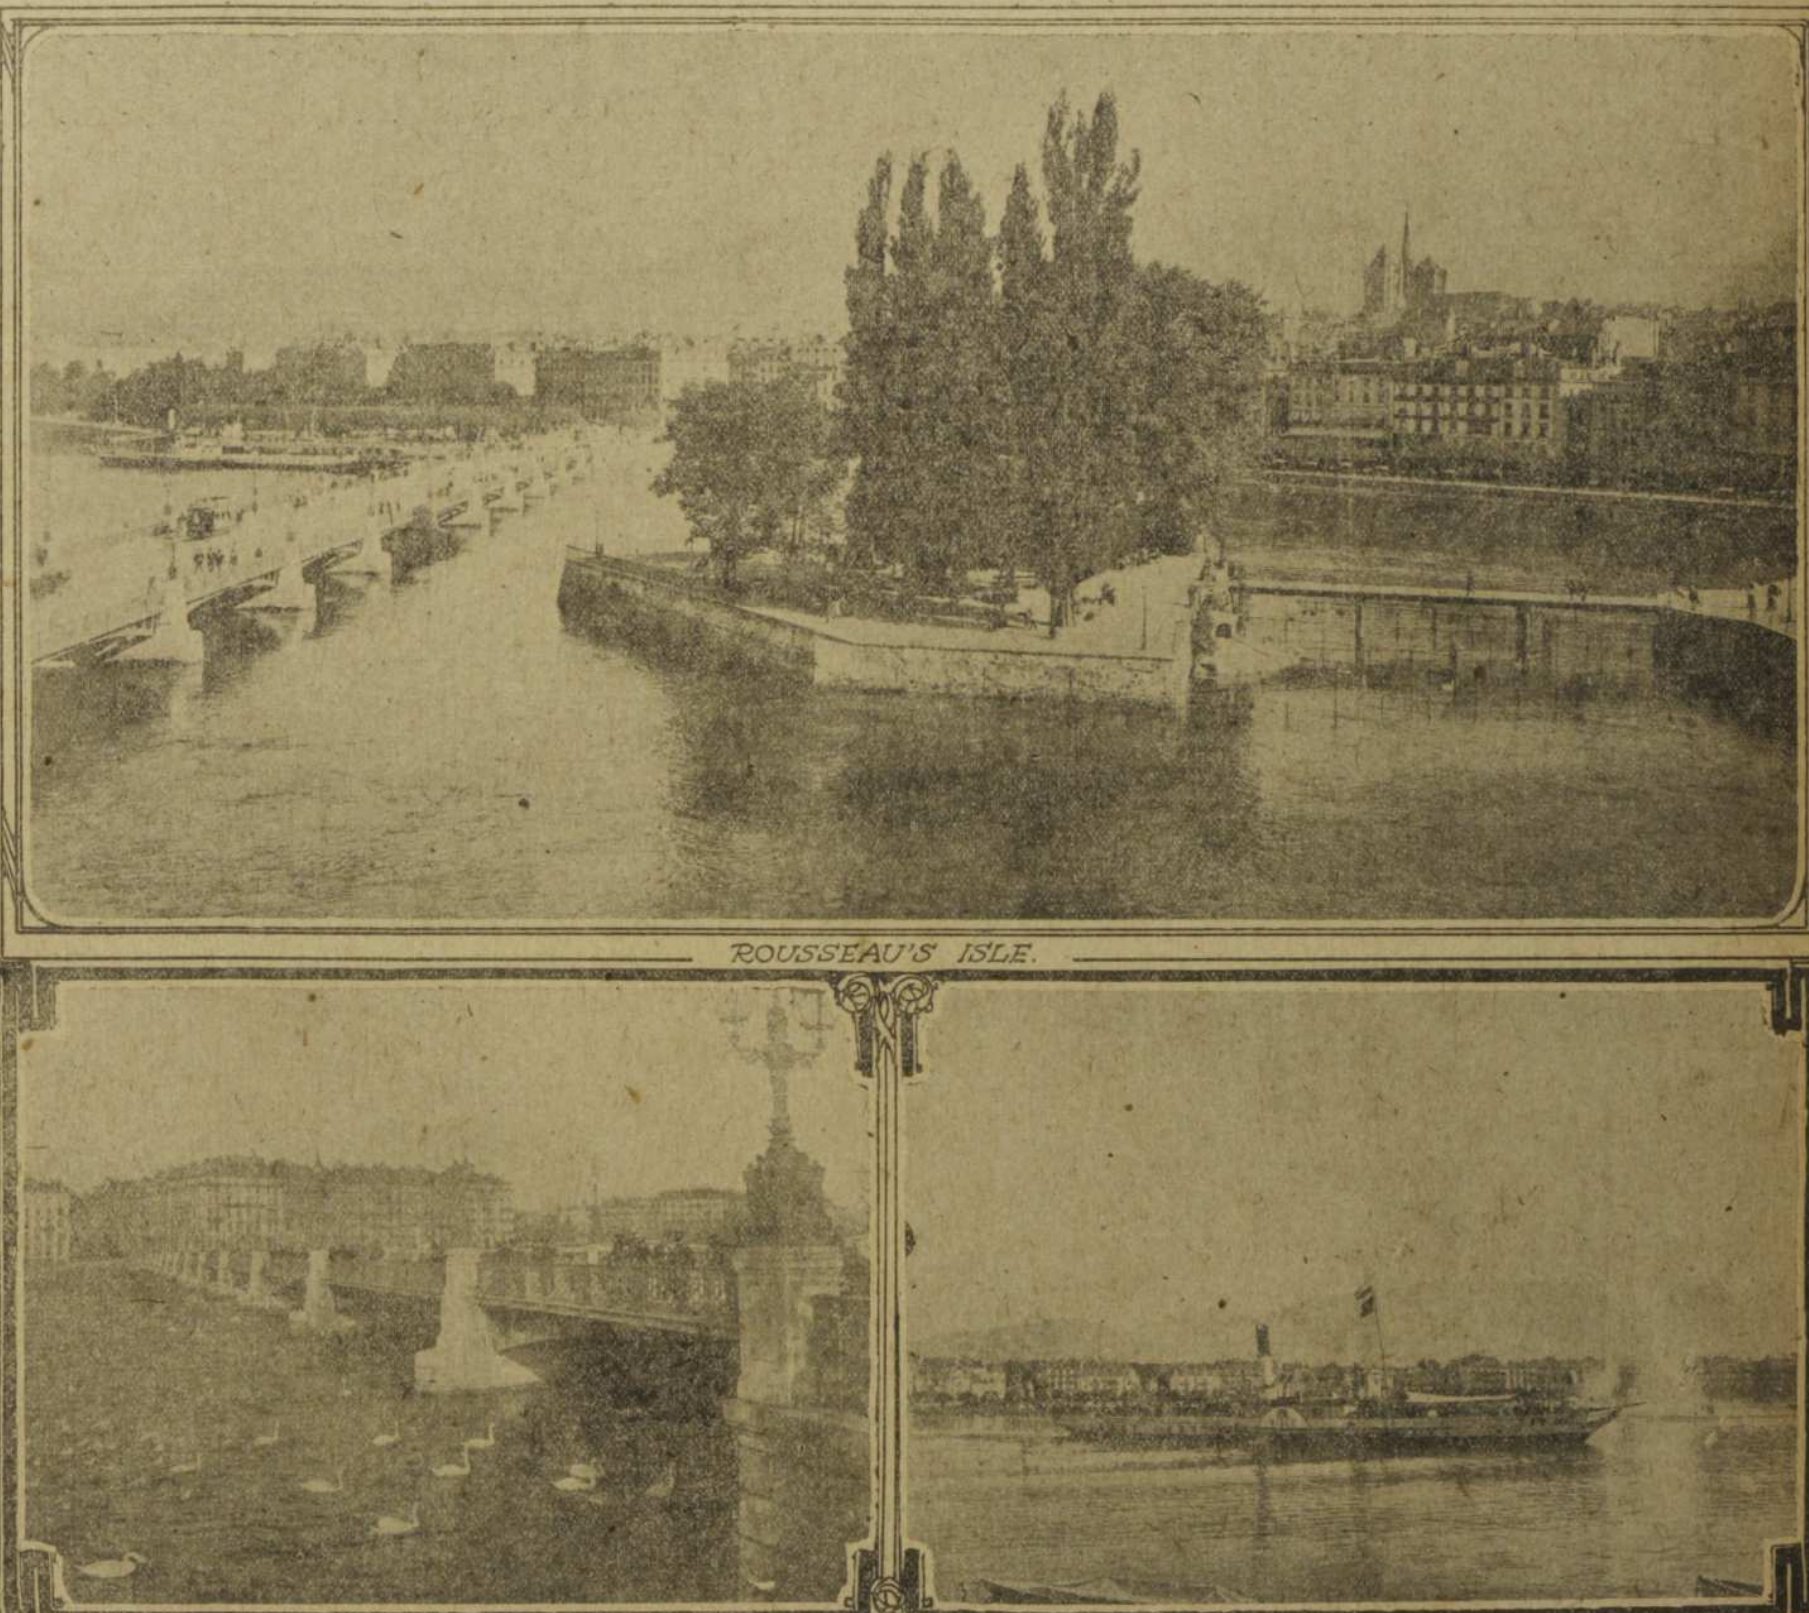

With a howling mob at their heels, composed not only of gas cooking stoves, but new-fangled gas heaters and complicated wringing machines, the three wanderers walked down the street in Geneva, the Pearl of Swiss Lakes.

Beauty Spot of Nature Sung By Many Famous Writers. Majestic Background of Mountains For Azure Waters.

MONTREUX - AN IDYLIC CORNER OF THE LAKE OF GENEVA.

ROUSSEAU'S ISLE.

THE MONT BLANC BRIDGE.

A PASSENGER STEAMER PLYING ON THE LAKE OF GENEVA.

(Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.)

GENEVA, May 5.—Where there are lakes there are always attractive, picturesque scenery, and in the Old World, romantic associations and wonderful traditions. The really superlative lakes of the world for native grandeur and romantic lore are those of Switzerland. No visitor on a return trip to Switzerland neglects to renew his acquaintance with the particular lake that has absorbed his loving attention.

The beauty of Swiss lakes, as Lord Avebury suggests, is due in great measure to the exquisite coloring of their waters. The waters of the Lake of Geneva—Lac Léman—for instance, are pellucidly blue, and those of Lucerne as purely emerald green. Through the blueness of lakes is not owing to the reflection from the blue sky, the brilliancy, beauty and variety of tone and tints, the play of color to ultramarine and violet, the constant changes and patterns varying with every breath of wind—in short, the life and glory and beauty of the lakes—are entirely due to the light of the sun.

Sometimes the azure blue of the water of the Lake of Geneva is seen to be fringed by a clear gray or greenish margin. This is called the "Rim" or "Bianconzo," more the shadow of the water renders visible the gray or yellowish tint of the bottom, which is composed of loose stones or gravel, thus forming a slightly inclined terrace. Many of the Swiss lakes are so encircled, and it was upon these remarkable shallow terraces that the very interesting ancient lake dwellings were built. These sites are still in evidence, and prove that the Swiss lakes must have been for centuries, if not for thousands of years, maintained at a very constant level.

THE BOSS.

(Herald and Presbyter.)
The insurance agent climbed the steps and rang the bell.
"Whom do you wish to see?" asked the careworn person who came to the door.
"I want to see the boss of the house," replied the insurance agent. "Are you the boss?"
"No," meekly replied the man who came to the door. "I'm only the husband of the boss. Step in, I'll call the boss."

The insurance agent took a seat in the hall, and in a short time a tall, dignified woman appeared.
"So you want to see the boss?" repeated the woman. "I'll call the boss."

"Tell me," pleaded the insurance agent, when the lady came into the kitchen. "Are you the boss of the house?"
"Want to see the boss?" asked the woman. "Well, you just come with me."

The staging of Switzerland's lakes is elaborate, displaying nature in all her magnificent majesty. Every stroke of the boatman's oar, or step of the pedestrian on the shore changes the form and order and aspect of the mountain masses rising from the water's edge, as well as of the cloudy realm in which they have reared their crowns. These transformations, sudden and amazing, never fail to elicit astonishment.

The lakes encircle the outer rim of this Alpine realm. They lie at various levels; and the surface and bottom levels and "greatest depths" vary also in relation to each other and in regard to the sea level. That they are not parts of one great inland sea, their peculiar physical formation proves. The greatest depth of Lake Geneva does not vary much from that of a hundred feet. The general depth of the lake is remarkably shallow, contrary to the idea that usually is gotten by the uninitiated—it is merely a "film" of water compared with other lakes, says Lord Avebury. "Lake Geneva is perfectly matchless with the unrivaled character of its surface coloring, its sky-blue, its gray and its contour and the encompassment of those in the far background Mont Blanc. The Oberland also is ever in evidence, on the east, and the Jura on the west. Nature, in short, has made one grand tableau."

The sunsets here are enough, alone, to bring thousands from the remotest corners of the world. The lake has impressed poets and imaginative mortals from all countries during the centuries that have gone and it is safe to say will continue to impress others in the future as deeply and emotionally as in the past.

Dotted By Sails.

The placidity of the lake is seldom ruffled; only the gentlest ripples of meeting point and was obliged to await the train from the opposite direction. As time passed and the other train did not appear the official, becoming impatient at the long delay, went to the telegraph office and wired the next station, asking if the expected train had passed. On receiving an answer that it had not he wired the station agent to stop the train and have it wait until the arrival of the train on which he was riding. He then requested the engineer to take the train to the next station, but found that he objected because it was irregular and he had no faith in the telegraph. Not in the least deterred, he commanded the engineer to start his train was the movement made. Upon arriving at the next station it was found that the other train had not yet appeared; the telegraph was again employed and the train was again stopped. This demonstration of the saving in time which could be effected by the telegraph applied to the system of dispatching trains which has existed unchanged until the present time.

THE JOY RIDERS.

(Roy L. McCordell in the New York World.)
A twisted auto on a dead man's chest—
Ye hol and a bottle of rum!
Drink and the devil had done their best—
Ye hol and a bottle of rum!
The road-house bar and the "lady friend"—
Ye hol and a bottle of rum!
And at eight miles she took the bend—
Ye hol and a bottle of rum!
A swerve that mocked their drunken whim,
A crash—
Ye hol and a bottle of rum!

Ye hol and a bottle of rum!
Ye hol and a bottle of rum!

spread of sail. Besides such craft the palatial steamers of the General Navigation Company ply the lake from end to end, while the net fishing banks of the mid-lake and another, industrial, interest to these blue waters.

Above Geneva, overlooking the valley, and the plain to the south of the Arve, which by a plank of nature just missed emptying its waters into the lake, a semi-circle of mountains incloses the city on the west end of the lake.

The Tour d'Ai forms a conspicuous feature at the eastern end of the lake, and from the Rocher de Naye, accessible by a mountain railway, a glorious view is obtained of the Bernese Oberland to the west, with again the Dent du Midi and the extreme summit of Mont Blanc to the south. To the north is the great plain of Switzerland; and "around us a wilderness of ridges and valleys, gray precipices, steep bright green grassy slopes, dotted with dark masses, patches, lines and groups of pines; below which are paler green deciduous trees, and at our feet the blue waters of the lake."

One generally thinks of the waters of the lake as surely "deep." But they are, for the most part, really shallow.

As before noted, between Yvoire on the south side of the lake, and Rolle on the north, at a depth of about a hundred feet, is a bank known as the Omble, the best fishing spot on the lake for the Omble Chevalier, which comes there to breed. The Business Girl's Conduct

It is the correct thing in business life to be dressed in garments of quiet colors and trim make; garments which shall forever show immaculate neatness, good taste and common sense. There is only one word for the overdressed business girl—she is a goose.

Always be on time, preferring to reach the office a little ahead of the hour set for work rather than behind it. Many a salary has been raised through punctuality alone. It gives a stamp of good business, and often atones for other shortcomings.

Treat your employer like a gentleman and a friend, and not as if you suspected him at heart of being your deadly enemy. The green light you fancy you see so often in his eye has seldom anything to do with you. The poor man has troubles of his own, and the phosphorescent gleam in his broad eye may mean only the worried wonder as to how he will pay your salary.

Treat everybody in the office, down to the freckle-faced dear boy who waits on the whole community, as a human soul whose foibles and comforts are quite as important as your own. This does not mean that you should add three stories to it, and in these days of rapid changes there is always a chance of the office boy rising to a position whose power might threaten your peace. Besides, office boys like politeness—and they know when you fall in common decency in this respect.

Show the new girl kindly and not roughly how to go about her work. Earning her own living is not a task for the tender mercies of home, and everything is terrifying. She is a tender vine which may be trained to great usefulness or destroyed to the last root by the treatment the office gives her in her novice days.

Offer any girl who has failed to remember her clean towel or soap the use of your own in the wash room and do not do this with a grudging air. Think always good and not bad of your office associates, and when speaking of them utter nothing to their hurt. The sweet-hearted girl who looks for nothing but good in the human race is bound to find it. She is the darling of the whole world.

Observe a discreet silence on all your employer's affairs when out of the office, and discuss only such things in it as concern you. Discretion is one of the things all business houses are looking for, and when one finds the real article it is well paid for.

Avoid all flirtatious manners with the men in the office. Three times out of four, a married man thinks his wife is the prettiest woman on earth, and the single ones do not care to mix business with foolishness. Girl stenographers and typewriters have made very happy and prosperous marriages with office associates, but they have also been promptly "bounced" when they displayed the wrong manner to their men associates.

The "boss" has no fondness for the giddy business woman.

Warn a girl promptly when she is doing the wrong thing and try to put her right.

Take up only that part of the cloak room which is your right, and change the best place on occasions with some other worker.

Select a girl in preference to a man as your luncheon companion.

Pay for your own lunch if a man has only happened to come along with you and another girl.

Look for no raise in your salary until you have deserved it.

Explain any absence from the office to your employer, and never stay away unless you have a good excuse.

Comply amiably with all orders for extra work or else state frankly that your health will not permit your working overtime. The average employer is a far more reasonable person than he is given credit for being and rarely expects the impossible.

Keep your troubles to yourself and lend a ready ear always to the troubles of others.

Say "Good morning" pleasantly to everybody as you enter the office.

Say "Good-bye" as pleasantly when you are going home.

And, finally, remember this: The correct thing in office behavior means every time—PRUDENCE STANDISH.

Timely Recipes

VASSAR CAKES—These little bites are cornmeal hoo-cakes, served hot and eaten with strained honey, brown sugar or New Orleans molasses. But the hoo has nothing to do with them; a batter is made with cornmeal and cold water, seasoned only with salt. The batter must be so thin that it literally pours from a tablespoon, one of which is put on a time on a hot iron griddle for the cake. The usual griddle holds three or four cakes, and as soon as these cook they are thinly coated with butter and served in hot plates. The sugar, honey or molasses is put on at the table.

SALADE CREOLE—Orange, romaine, lettuce, green peppers and chives are the ingredients of this refreshing dish. Chop a young and delicate lettuce, strip the leaves, wash carefully and dry each piece with a napkin. Put them in the bottom of a mixing bowl, and add the plugs, skinned and broken in half, of one or two oranges. Over these shred a large green pepper finely and add from one to two teaspoons of chopped chives. Season with olive oil, and salt, and if more acid is liked add a light squeeze of lemon juice. Instead of orange, grape fruit could be used with this salad, and the beauty of it will be much improved with strips of Spanish pimiento.

STRAWBERRY FINGERS—The little sponge cakes, usually designated as "lady fingers," are used for this girlish dainty. These are divided and packed as full as the narrow pieces will hold with fresh strawberries. A thick coating of whipped cream covers the berries, and the top of the "finger" is put on after the berries have been arranged. Arrange in a flat platter with whipping cream over all and a bright line at the edge of strawberries.

Smart Styles for the Business Woman.

IT WOULD be absurd to make the statement that there are fashions designed especially for business women. The woman who goes forth to wrest her bread from the hands of strangers is not a species apart from the rest of womankind, but one with her sisters and entitled to every little vanity for which she can pay.

But it is necessary to pay the curb on this privilege with actual business garments, for custom has made a certain plainness desirable for these.

This plainness is accomplished most often by a coat and skirt suit of some sort, which is always kept in good condition with pressing and cleaning, and is worn with a neat shirt waist, trim hat and well-fitting gloves and boots.

This model is by far the best to choose when only one business frock can be afforded, but it should be of excellent material and good make in order to stand the wear and tear involved. The wearing qualities of a dress depend, too, a good deal on how much coddling it gets, and it is useless to deny that cheap materials and dressmaking are bad economy in the end.

In fact, those who have made the trial declare that a fifty dollar dress, for example, is cheaper in the long run than two at thirty each; and the same may be said of the wisdom of choosing a well made hat in preference to one that is merely cheap, for however fine it looks in the beginning, the bargain hat is not likely to stand the storm and stress of business life.

The shirtwaist bought for the office or store cannot be too good as far as its make and quality are concerned, for cheap waists wash badly, and no other garment gives so completely the look of inadequacy when it is the wrong thing. Quite six wash dresses are necessary for workaday neatness, and the Peter Pan model, whose sleeves are somewhat though not greatly smaller than last year, is a good one to consider, especially when it is in stout linen, duck or pongee. A stock in gulf design, of the shirt material, is a very smart and inexpensive neck finish for the business shirtwaist, and this comfortable and orderly neck fixing is becoming to most wearers.

A hat which seems to be getting more notice this season than any other is the mushroom shape, which, when not of exaggerated size, with its compact trimmings provides a stylish headpiece for business wear. Some of the rough straw shapes in this model are very smartly decorated with bands of black velvet and close bunches of some fruit. The fruit trimmings will doubtless be run in the ground after awhile, but meanwhile the gay cherries, and daisy pinks, and dear, foolish little apples and gooseberries seem very charming.

When the may be of a Cuban straw, with fringed scarfs of striped raffia, belts and handbags of the same material going smartly with these. With the black dress, too, work for business the raffia gives a fresh and new note when used in this way. It will be really delightful with the pongee dresses later on.

As to the business woman's best bib and tucker, and the material for her workaday frock, let us illustrate with the stylish designs here shown.

Figure A shows a stunning model for wool or worsted business dress. The line of the diagonally fastened skirt is repeated in the trimming of the skirt, and though a braid is here employed as a band of color, the gown still readily effects the smart outlining. Black or dark blue serge, panama cloth, or brilliantine, are the materials which would be the best choices for this dress, which could be worn with the mushroom hat, a wide sailor or a flower trimmed shape. A black dress would be immensely smartened by a floral hat, but do not forget that the natural color roses would be out of place for business wear. Then they have been almost entirely replaced by the faded flowers, whose unearthly tints, when properly combined, create an effect actually restrained.

FIG. B—A SMART SPRING COSTUME.

FIG. C—FOR THE COMING SUMMER.

A woman fond of elegance, and who suffers from summer heat, might have this dress made of a material like velvet, in which case the parasol would be of the same material.

In Fig. B is shown an Empire dress with waistcoat effect. This elegant frock, which in a light color would only be suited to high days and holidays, is here shown in a dark color, with a velvet waistcoat and a wide sailor collar.

The vest is of black satin and the hat of green straw with trimming of black gauze and faded roses. Such a dress would be charming in a lighter velling, say tan or pale gray, and, if the skirt complexion permitted, it could be in gold colored pongee which is so fashionable. This shade, which is as warm as burnished brass, is not infrequently seen effectively topped with plaidish black hats.

But as black is by far the most useful thing for the only smart workaday dress, suggest something which would be useful for many occasions.

This would be a skirt of velling and a coat in this shade (Fig. B) of braided silk; or the entire costume could be of some light weight and lustrous black silk and the vest of cream wash broadcloth.

One frock of smart description is necessary for most of one's business success depends upon dress nowadays, and when gala clothes are on hand the heart does not all at home and brood. A business woman once told me that she had lost her health through not having proper clothing for her friends; for, of course, she staid at home rather than go anywhere unsuitably dressed.

The very pink of simplicity and neatness is expressed by the model in Fig. C. It is suited to anything from silk to gingham. The dress is made of a light weight and lustrous black silk and the vest of cream wash broadcloth.

The model has hands often selling as low as $1.50. Eight yards of medium wide cotton crepe in Japanese design, with plain stuff for body and skirt, would make a very pretty and stylish wrapper.

As pongee is such a smart material, doubleless many a hot weather business dress will be made of it in the quiet shades of tan, with the seams and the skirt lapped tailor-wise and the shirtwaist tucked. The belt and collar used with such a gown would likewise be of the same material, though for most complexions a white collar would be more becoming, and black patent leather belts will be much worn.

When there is an afternoon's hunt in prospect, this little dress could be put on in the morning and worn with perfect taste to work, as it is too simple to offend even the most exacting judgment. The dapper shirtwaist hat tops it adequately and prettily.

In Fig. D is given one of the simple wrappers that every business woman needs for comfort and rest at home.

This model is frequently shown in the shops, the developments of it in lawn with neat bias hands often selling as low as $1.50. Eight yards of medium wide cotton crepe in Japanese design, with plain stuff for body and skirt, would make a very pretty and stylish wrapper.

Beauty and Health In the Warm Luncheon.

WHAT do you eat for your business luncheon? A cold roast beef or ham sandwich, which you take to the office in your satchel? A piece of pie and a cup of iced milk, which you eat in five minutes of lonely solitude at the lunch counter? A glass of ice-cream soda, and two slender sweet biscuits, which the clerk drags across the counter for your new dinner?

Alas, I thought so, and this is why you have a heavy head all afternoon; why your once sweet complexion is blotched or sallow; why your hair is dull, your eyes lifeless—why your heart seems breaking at times.

The rules of health are few and simple, but women seldom take the tremendous importance of food into account when starting upon the business career. There are wise ones, of course—clever girls who know how much the body has to do with business success; but there are others who, through some idea of economy are very foolish, and I know enough of business life to suspect that they outnumber the wise by a good many hundreds. I have seen on all sides the direful results of the cold noon bite, carried so neatly from home to the place of business, and devoured with the idea that money was being saved.

Take the manner alone in which the satchel girl eats her deadly cold scrap. Without moving from the desk at which she has had so much toil, so many fancied disappointments and humiliations, she opens the unappetizing mess and disposes of it in dead silence, spending the rest of the hour in brooding over work. Sometimes she is only saving time to spend money in other directions; and sometimes she is a splendid woman who is sacrificing herself for others.

But she is wrong in either case, for some little change in this hour in the day of toil is needed for mental as well as physical health, and if the luncheon is of warm and digestible description the benefit is tenfold.

A heavy meal is not needed, but a good warm one is; and if every business woman would only be as wise in this matter as a man is—only say,

"Now, this is my lunch money," and put for an adequate sum for the week, a woman who goes to work every day would never feel that she could go on again with the cold bites.

"But," says some girl at this point, "I am not talking of restaurants, 'cause I don't earn as much as men—they can't earn as much as men—on twelve or fifteen dollars a week, I couldn't cost a fortune."

Why, my milliner?

And then she tells, perhaps, of a hat for which she has paid very nearly a dollar, and she says, "I am primed to answer that dear but misguided maiden. The price of a hat one summer may be needed."

For a doctor and a sanatorium another year. I know a girl who went to a sanatorium two years ago because she shivered up on food for clothes. And she is still THERE.

Paris Brides and Their Modes

PARIS.—Behold the season for marriages in Paris.

Beginning immediately after Easter, the nuptial knot is tied here up to July, and many charming scenes of French life distinguish the marriage day. To the stranger in Paris for the first time, the marriage communique—the wedding of the girl of the people—displays the most entertaining features.

When the working girl or daughter of the little merchant weds, she goes immediately from the church to the breakfast in ville. Any ordinary restaurant may be the scene of this joyous and noisy feast, and after it is over the bridal party, down to the thirteenth cousin, spends the afternoon in some city or country park.

For wedding gatherings with the bride trailing her long satin gown and white veil into every sort of outdoor fun, may often be met with doing the waltzes of Versailles or riding upon merry-go-rounds at St. Cloud. The bridegroom, who is openly a happy man, wears a boutonniere of white ribbon, as big as a lettuce, while the bride, as openly happy, clings incessantly to his arm.

The Madeleine and St. Roch are the fashionable churches for smart weddings, though at some times the altar of the wedding of the file de peuple may be going on at the same time. At a recent brilliant affair in the Madeleine, the bride wore a simple gown of Lyons satin, which so loosely covered her slim form that it almost suggested an elegant negligee. But underneath this modest exterior there was a slip of rich English lace that showed in a deep vest and where the drapery parted at the left knee. Not a wisp of trimming appeared on the satin princess, if a garland of orange blossoms fastened to the garment at the left, and falling below the knee, may be excepted.

At this wedding, and many other smart ones recently, dowager guests, and even quite young married women, showed a decided preference for black tulle and lace, and a big wreath of ribbon twined about it.

Wedding heads are in every way superbly dressed, scarfs of ribbon or of various tissues and strands of pearls being sometimes worn in with the braids, which stand out widely everywhere, giving a slim but not a her statesque drape, a top-heavy look.

Everywhere one sees this pannier effect managed in one way or another. Even some of the new tunics have the lines of this drapery. They open in the waist line, then separate and go around the figure to the back, following a line half way between high and hem. Often there is a ruffle of the material edged with lace or cord or embroidery. A girl is a thing that gives the effect of the pannier.

At the joining of the yoke and the knee, the pannier is a draped pannier of the material, cut on the straight and carried around the figure to the back, where it ends with plaited ends, and tucked up neatly to the waist line, then separate and go around the figure to the back, following a line half way between high and hem. Often there is a ruffle of the material edged with lace or cord or embroidery. A girl is a thing that gives the effect of the pannier.

But it is a charming fashion, notwithstanding, for everything woefully worn and suited to the wearer seems right.

It is astonishing how modest some of the going-away frocks are. A charming costume de voyage was a pale gray cloth, self-trimmed. There were narrow applied folds of the cloth at the bottom of the Empire skirt, and with this went a loose sleeved coat and a gray chiffon bodice hid in fine tucks. The hat for the charming dress was a peach basket shape of rough gray straw, trimmed with wide black velvet ribbon and huge white and purple plumes.

Silk costumes, which closely resemble the old weave, are used for a number of the smart trousseaux frocks, summer coats and negligees, while thin dress lawn, treated with pretty lace, lends itself to underwear. In fact, a lot of the latest fashions might be called antiquated in America, are used with pleasing distinction. It is the fourness which makes the thing—the cut of the garment, the exquisite make of under ones.

At the joining of the yoke and the knee, the pannier is a draped pannier of the material, cut on the straight and carried around the figure to the back, where it ends with plaited ends, and tucked up neatly to the waist line, then separate and go around the figure to the back, following a line half way between high and hem. Often there is a ruffle of the material edged with lace or cord or embroidery. A girl is a thing that gives the effect of the pannier.

What he enjoyed most was the gradual but certain change in critical attitude toward him. I've noticed that the genuine criticism of opportunity contain nothing else so scathing as the newspaper reviews of his earlier plays, like 'A Bunch of Kevs,' 'A Parlor Match' and 'A Rag Baby.' He was never proud of 'A Parlor Match,' and, as a matter of fact, very proud of 'A Rag Baby.' He worked the piece up to fit Evans and Hoyt out of an old office place called 'The Book Agent,' by Frank Dumont, the Philadelphia minstrel man.

are good, they are the audience expressing their frenzy of delight when the actor, for any reason of some unique situation in the play, is forced to make a sudden transition to a height of passionate outbursts of impetuous applause. And yet generally the actor is not aware of the effect produced, and the author who furnishes the occasion for the outburst of emotion, is entirely forgotten. many towns in Asia Minor had built permanent theaters long ere this. The Greeks had their theaters, and the Romans copied for assemblies of the people and for feasts.

The Greeks built their theaters on the top of a hill, but the Romans, who began the construction of theaters on a level site, the Dionysiac theater in Athens, although the site of the theater had not been decided, was excavated in 1862. The theater was built on a hill, the two tiers of seats were found in a fair state of preservation. The theater was built in 330 B.C. There were three entrances to the stage—on each side and in the center. The theater entrance was for the principal actors.

At the end of the Fourth century, B.C., every important Greek city had a theater. Provision had been made to protect the theater from fire, the sun and weather still in the Second century, A. D., when the theaters were protected by awnings, as a shelter from inclement weather.

The Romans copied their theaters from the Greeks, except their orchestra was in the center of the stage. The theaters occupied more than a semi-circle.

of concrete the Romans were enabled to erect their theater on any site. The first theater in Rome was completed in 52 B. C., and seated 4,000 persons. The Romans generally built two theaters close together, one for the Greek and the other for the Latin drama. The Greeks had the matter of scenery and stage effects. They had three sorts of movable scenery, such as were used in the modern theaters, which included facades with columns representing public buildings; scenery for comic plays—private houses with fictitious windows and balconies; the third, for the satyric drama—rustic scenes with mountains, caverns and trees.—(Philippa Inquirer.)

E. G. RUNYAN KILLED

IN SAN ANTONIO

RESULT OF ACCIDENT IN SHOOT-

MEMBER OF WELL-KNOWN LO-

CAL BUSINESS FIRM.

INQUEST TO BE HELD TO-DAY.

San Antonio, Tex., May 22.—(Special.)—E. G. Runyan, of Louisville, a member of the firm of Runyan Bros., wholesale grocers of that city and president of the Merchants Ice and Cold Storage Company of San Antonio, was instantly killed at Electric Park to-day at 9:25 o'clock. His death was entirely accidental and occurred in front of the Baker shooting gallery. He and several friends were spectators at that concession, watching other persons shoot with the small caliber rifle.

The accident resulted while an attempt was being made to extract a cartridge which accidentally had become choked in the breach of the gun. It is thought the knife with which he was trying to extract the shell pierced the trigger and exploded it. At the time the gun was being across the country.

E. G. Runyan, one of the men in Runyan Bros. party, said he thought he heard the cartridge explode and a second or two after that Mr. Runyan said, "Gee, I'm hit," and then sank to the ground, death instantly ensuing. The bullet had pierced the heart.

DEVOTE DAY TO SPEECH-MAKING

Senators Begin Fight Over Lumber Schedule.

Bailey Demands a Rollcall Every Few Minutes.

Effort To Fix Day For Vote Unsuccessful.

TURN DOWN FOR ALDRICH.

Washington, May 22.—By special agreement the Senate took no votes to-day on any subject, and the entire session was devoted to speechmaking. The lumber schedule was under discussion during the greater part of the day, and the controversy between the free lumber advocates and their high-tariff opponents was at times sharp.

Senator McCumber introduced the subject by presenting an amendment providing for free lumber, and he was on the floor several times during the day in support of this provision. He contended that the American forests were being rapidly depleted, and urged that every encouragement should be given to the bringing in of outside lumber for the protection of our own supply.

On the other hand, Senators Elkins, Scott and Heyburn, all of them representing lumber producing constituencies, contended strenuously for a higher duty than is allowed by the House bill. They controverted the theory that the American lumber supply is rapidly diminishing.

Sit Down On Burton.

Once more the Senate placed on record its determination not to undertake other legislation while the tariff bill is pending. This action was taken in opposition to an effort on the part of Senator Burton, former chairman of the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and now a member of the Senate Committee on Commerce, to have extended certain appropriations for the improvement of the country's waterways. He was antagonized by Senators Hale and Clapp, and was compelled to desist.

Senator Bailey began the day by demanding that the advocates of the tariff bill should maintain a quorum notwithstanding there were to be no votes taken, and he and other Senators were responsible for a number of rollcalls in interest.

As a concession to the Senators who were demanding time for attention to their correspondence, the Senate adjourned at 3:04 o'clock.

Aldrich Meets Temporary Defeat.

Senator Aldrich made good his promise of yesterday to try to-day to get a day named for taking the final vote on the tariff bill. He named Wednesday, June 2, as his preference. He did not get it. His request for a ballot on that day covered not only the bill, but amendments then pending. There was prompt objection from both the Democratic and Republican sides of the chamber.

Senator Daniel at once recorded his objection and Senator Cummins joined him. As unanimous consent was necessary under the request there was nothing for Mr. Aldrich to do but to submit.

In reply to an inquiry by Mr. Hale, Mr. Aldrich said the Senate had disposed of a majority of the paragraphs that had been disputed, and he said he would later renew his request for unanimous consent for a time to vote.

All when, shortly before noon, the lumber paragraph was reached, Mr. McCumber presented his amendment providing for free lumber, instead of a duty of $2 per thousand feet, as in the Dingley law, and $1 as provided by the House bill. The action precipitated the long threatened fight.

Mr. McCumber declared that the lumber industry needed no protection. There was, he said, no danger that any of the American lumber mills would be closed because of foreign competition. The increasing demand for these forest products tend to keep up the prices.

Mr. Borah opposed Mr. McCumber's view that a tariff on lumber would tend to deplete the forests. "It is incredible," he said, "that the human race is going to perish rather than plant trees on land of no use except for the planting of trees."

Mr. McCumber insisted that the industry of the United States had reached its height and that free lumber would partly supply the American market with a product that could not be supplied from American forests without exhausting them.

Bailey Interrupts.

Mr. McCumber was interrupted by Mr. Bailey, who called attention to the absence of a quorum, and when sixty-six Senators answered to their names, the Senator from North Dakota suspended the floor. Senator Elkins, defending the lumber interest, accused the Senator from North Dakota of being a "spotted protectionist," favoring protection on products of his own State, but not on those of other States. "I want to direct the attention of the country," intimated Mr. Bailey, "to the fact that the United States tariff protection is a system of 'bargaining'."

The influential system known as the protective tariff, under which has grown up a policy of extortion, was the basis of a speech by Mr. McCumber. It was the first real tariff speech of the day, and the Senator's exceptional attention to most of the Mississippi Senator's utterances, notwithstanding he dealt with elementary conditions.

That the Constitution gives authority for customs duties for revenue purposes only was contended by Mr. McCumber. He favored strict economy in the expenditures of the government, declaring that the United States should throw off the burden of the Philippine Islands, and thus save the $100,000,000 of military expenditures that are necessary for the passage of private pension bills.

Advocates Income Tax.

Advocating an income tax to raise a revenue of $70,000,000 and a head tax upon immigrants to raise $20,000,000, Mr. McCumber said such a course would permit the removal of the duties now levied upon carriages and blacksmiths' tools, typewriters, printing presses and bagging and ties used by the cotton planters of the South. He spoke against allowing any differential duty on refined sugar, arguing that it only enriched the already opulent sugar barons.

He believed what the Senator from North Dakota has told us, I would be in fear that the human family would be destroyed, he declared, if he burned in the opening of his appeal for a duty on lumber.

Citing various articles used in the lumber industry that are manufactured in the East together with the personal supplies of the employees in the lumber camps, Mr. Heyburn asserted that the business generally was dependent on the sale of lumber and affects other parts of the country as well as it does the State in which the forests are located.

Asserting that the wages paid to the lumbermen are distributed to the value of industries through the country, Mr. Heyburn declared that the reduction of the duty would result in a condition, such as he witnessed in 1898 when, he said, the lumber mills in the Northwest closed down for a period of three years.

Mr. Heyburn defended the miner's against the charge that they are re-

RACE ISSUE IN RAILWAY STRIKE

Mobs After Firemen On the Georgia Railroad.

Citizens of Thompson In a Threatening Attitude.

Temporary Order Issued Calling Out Engineers.

GOV. SMITH ON THE ALERT.

Augusta, Ga., May 22.—The race issue late to-night suddenly gave an extremely ugly aspect to the strike of the Georgia Railroad, who went out in an attempt to force the railroad to discharge its negro firemen.

Blood flowed at Athens and a small mob gathered here, the former disturbance being over a white fireman and the latter over a negro fireman.

The engineers were called out shortly after midnight when word was received that trains had been stoned at Lithonia and at Conyers, Ga., to-day and that the engineers had been struck by rocks intended for their firemen. The order calling out the engineers was temporary and was issued by Assistant Grand Chief Burgess of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who is in Atlanta. He intimated that adequate protection should be afforded for the engineers the order for them not to take out their trains might be revoked. Meanwhile passenger train No. 4 for Augusta with nearly every coach full, stood in the train shed at Atlanta with its time for pulling out past due and no engineer to be found to handle the train.

TENSION INCREASING.

Gov. Smith was in conference about midnight with Sheriff Clark here, who assured the Governor that the negro who had been threatened was safe and that things were quiet for the night.

The Governor believes that careful handling is necessary to avoid stirring up race issues.

Displays of Race Feeling Along the Georgia Railroad.

Atlanta, Ga., May 22.—The strike of white firemen on the Georgia railroad, entering upon its fifth day to-day with its already accompanying acts of violence and intimidation, gives promise of more serious consequences. State and Federal authorities are taking extraordinary precautions—the latter on the grounds of protecting the mails—so as to prevent interference with the operation of train service on the road, but it is realized the situation is developing into one of seriousness.

At small towns along the Georgia railroad between Atlanta and Augusta much feeling has been manifested by those who sympathize with the strikers, it having been publicly proclaimed by the officials of the Order of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen that the strike is based upon a question of white supremacy, resulting in no little display of race feeling at these wayside stations.

A number of negro firemen have been roughly handled at some of these points, enraged citizens even going so far as to attack armed guards of the road and compelling them, as well as the negro firemen, to abandon their trains.

Following the open threat of the officials of the firemen's organization to extend the strike to every road in the South and continue the fight until every negro fireman has been replaced by white men, comes the rumor to-day that there is a possibility of the engineers being drawn into the fight.

This morning General Manager Scott, of the Georgia railroad, announced that he had been notified by F. A. Burgess, Assistant Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, that engineers cannot be expected to continue on duty unless given adequate protection.

Mr. Burgess' action is believed to indicate the grounds upon which the engineers may base justification for a walk-out.

The Sheriff of McDuffy county wired Gov. Smith that the situation at Thompson is critical and that he is unable to handle it. Several trains have been boarded by strikers and the Thompsons and they finally agreed not to molest the train if the negro firemen removed the train would be allowed to pass as a passenger on the train.

No. 28 was delayed an hour at Norwood, while negotiations were carried on between the Thompsons and the road headquarters here. The Thompsons agreed that if the guards were removed, the train would be allowed to pass with the negro firemen. This stipulation was agreed to.

The ultimatum from Thompson came from the road's agent at Thomson as follows:

"Prominent men and myself have worked hard with the mob to-day and it was by the utmost persuasion that we got Nos. 27 and 28 by. We cannot do more with them and they say that no other train will be allowed to pass."

LET TWO TRAINS BY.

Thomson People, However, Sent Ultimatum to the Railroad.

Augusta, Ga., May 22.—Trains 27 and 28, passenger and mail, went through Thomson to-day unmolested. That they were not interfered with was the result of an understanding between the Georgia railroad management and certain angry residents of Thomson. These residents, however, issued an ultimatum that no more trains carrying negro union white firemen or negro firemen

Thomson People, However, Sent Ultimatum to the Railroad.

Augusta, Ga., May 22.—Trains 27 and 28, passenger and mail, went through Thomson to-day unmolested. That they were not interfered with was the result of an understanding between the Georgia railroad management and certain angry residents of Thomson. These residents, however, issued an ultimatum that no more trains carrying negro union white firemen or negro firemen will be allowed to pass that point. When No. 27 got to Dearing, the general offices of the Georgia railway at Atlanta received notice that the people in Thomson would not permit it to go through if there were armed guards or a negro fireman on the engine. Negotiations were opened with the Thompsons and they finally agreed not to molest the train if the negro firemen removed the train would be allowed to pass as a passenger on the train.

No. 28 was delayed an hour at Norwood, while negotiations were carried on between the Thompsons and the road headquarters here. The Thompsons agreed that if the guards were removed, the train would be allowed to pass with the negro firemen. This stipulation was agreed to.

The ultimatum from Thompson came from the road's agent at Thomson as follows:

"Prominent men and myself have worked hard with the mob to-day and it was by the utmost persuasion that we got Nos. 27 and 28 by. We cannot do more with them and they say that no other train will be allowed to pass."

MOB STONES OFFICERS

While They Are Trying To Protect a Fireman At Athens.

Athens, Ga., May 22.—Nearly 1,000 men and boys to-night stoned police-men and detectives who were protecting a white fireman, Will Williamson, who had fired a passenger train on the Georgia railroad yesterday on the run from Athens to Union Point, Ga. A detective was knocked down with a missile and T. H. Morris, a policeman, had an arm painfully lacerated in the fight. The fireman was saved from violence and the mob later dispersed.

Williamson came into Athens on his train. His guards struggled with the mob, shouting, hooting crowd from the station to police headquarters, where they took shelter from the flying sticks and stones. Williamson was struck several times in the back and a man in the crowd was accidentally struck in the face, blood streaming from a cut opened by the blow.

Around the police headquarters the mob gathered in a menacing manner, and Mayor Dorsey hurried to the scene, mounted the steps and induced the angry men to disperse. Shortly after midnight the town was quiet.

Attorney General At Augusta.

Augusta, Ga., May 22.—John C. Hart, Attorney General of the State, arrived in Augusta to-day on a Georgia Railroad train. He came at the instance of the Governor to make a survey of conditions along the road, but would give out no statement. He found excited gatherings at several points, particularly at Bonville, where he was guarded by strike sympathizers, who mistook him for a strikebreaker.

SOME FIGURES ON THE MEET.

ABOUT THE POINT WINNERS.

NEW YORK, May 21.—(Special.)—

About all of the aspirants for championship honors at the intercollegiate meet to be held at the Harvard stadium, May 28 and 29, have been given a treat, and the critics now have an opportunity of getting a line on the probable outcome of the games.

The dual meets of Saturday last brought out some magnificent performances and staked certain points in the championship race.

Every prediction of the Courier-Journal regarding the outcome of the meet was very vividly brought out this morning, especially so in the Harvard-Yale dual meet.

Dr. Duffey, the former intercollegiate champion, has repeatedly scoffed at the idea that Foster, of Harvard, is a champion, but I claim he is, and his work Saturday demonstrates the fact, that unless he suffers an injury, he will win the two duals at the championships. His performance in the 22.2 was the fastest that has been run anywhere in the world, since 1907, when Shick, of Harvard, won the 100-yard race.

The Harvard-Yale dual meet was good, for Merriwell ran the distance in 22.2, the fastest of the year and won in a small fraction of the intercollegiate record. The fastest time ever made by a man, was a little off color, and with these two men in shape it is dollars to doughnuts that Foster will make a pair a bit to stay in front.

Up at Ithaca there is a boy named French who went along in 1:38.24 in the 100-yard race, and who was the fastest of the year. He was the fastest of the year, and he was the fastest of the year.

OTHER GOSSIP OF DIAMOND.

H EINE PEITZ and his players are now engaging the enemy in the Eastern end of the American Association circuit. Including today's game, they have ten more to play, and probably eleven if the postponed contest with the Athletics at Toledo on April 29 is played. This will complete the twenty-nine days' tour of the Colonels.

Peitz's men were out of the fray for several days, while others ought to have been on the bench nursing injuries. However, the unexpected always happens. It is this uncertainty which contributes to the deep interest in the national pastime. Truly, the Colonels are a team and its chances of being a blinder for the championship honors is what makes the excitement and the big following.

While the Colonels were unsuccessful in their onslaught on the opposition in the West by losing more games than they won there is no room for complaints. In fact, when everything is considered, the Colonels have done very well. They have been on the bench nursing injuries. However, the unexpected always happens. It is this uncertainty which contributes to the deep interest in the national pastime. Truly, the Colonels are a team and its chances of being a blinder for the championship honors is what makes the excitement and the big following.

Coupled with the poor showing of the local staff of mound artists the Colonels were weak in most of the games with the stick. It is almost certain that a diamond argument with the pitcher is working badly and the men behind him are not hitting. It is almost certain that a diamond argument with the pitcher is working badly and the men behind him are not hitting. It is almost certain that a diamond argument with the pitcher is working badly and the men behind him are not hitting.

Although the Colonels have not succeeded in defeating the enemy in a majority of games, the trip to date from a financial standpoint has been splendid, and it is said that the stockholders of the club are correspondingly happy. If General Manager Chivington ought to receive several thousand dollars as his share of the gate receipts.

If the local slugging get back their speed and control, Andy Coakley, the pitcher acquired from the Chicago Cubs, will not be missed. If he decides to join the Colonels he will of course be given an opportunity to show what he can do. It is almost certain that the officials of the Louisville Club will not compel the regulars to play. It is almost certain that the officials of the Louisville Club will not compel the regulars to play.

It is almost sure that after the Colonels reach home they will give a much better account of themselves. Their strenuous trip of twenty-nine days is about finished. It has been a rough journey for the local warriors. The fans here are waiting for them to come home. They are getting hungry for baseball. It is almost sure that after the Colonels reach home they will give a much better account of themselves.

With the addition of new timber and the shifting of players between clubs in this league the teams in the Western end of O'Brien's circuit are apparently much stronger. The Colonels were the only ones to lose more games than they won.

THE TOM MORRIS MEMORIAL TROPHY, THE MOST COVETED OF GOLF PRIZES

The first intercollegiate clash in the Western territory, which ended last Thursday, resulted as follows:

Clubs	W.	L.
Columbus	5	3
Toledo	4	2
Indianapolis	3	1
Louisville	2	0
Milwaukee	1	0
Kansas City	1	0
St. Paul	1	0
Minneapolis	1	0
Total	21	6

DeLahanty, Olson and Quinlan are the only members of the Louisville team who have been hitting the ball safely in most of the games. The other players have not batted as well as they did before they left here. It is hoped that when the boys return home they will remain their batting orbs.

To date the Colonels have been fielding exceptionally well. However, this does not win most games.

When the teams from the West appear here on their initial visit there will be many new faces in the different line-ups.

Otto Miller, the Colonel's young catcher, who made the Western trip, but did not play in a single game, will likely be left at his home at Indianapolis until the team reaches Louisville.

The Colonels and Browns at Indianapolis yesterday certainly furnished a rattling game. Too bad the locals failed to win.

Rain played havoc with the baseball contests in the East between the National League clubs.

The friends of John McCloskey, the Louisville manager, are pleased to see Mack doing so well with the team. Despite the fact that Catter hostetter, who is touted to be another Kling, has a broken thumb, McCloskey has a broken ankle and McCloskey has a broken ankle and McCloskey has a broken ankle.

The battle for the pennant in this league to date gives promise of becoming a nip and tuck affair. The eight candidates for the championship honors are gradually getting bunched. It appears that the different teams are pretty well matched. The only method for team competition that will arouse the members of the association to compete for this trophy, is the method of competition evolved. Each club is to play the other clubs in a round-robin system.

After careful deliberation and study of the conditions affecting the various clubs that are members of the Western Golf Association, it appeared to the directors that the best method for team competition that would enable the members of the association to compete for this trophy, is the method of competition evolved. Each club is to play the other clubs in a round-robin system.

From the method of competition for this trophy, the directors have eliminated the problem of travel, and they believe, have provided a method for team competition that will arouse the members of the association to compete for this trophy, is the method of competition evolved. Each club is to play the other clubs in a round-robin system.

Outfitter McCloskey, the Browns' substitute, used to play for Jennings, but this season he has made the golf clubs of this country.

How Aristides Won For Price McGrath and What He Said

LOUISVILLE, May 22.—Sporting Editor, Courier Journal, Dear Sir:

LOST CITY OF THE INCAS.

(Boston Advertiser.)

Dr. Hiram Bingham, lecturer on Latin-American history at Yale, has returned from an exploration of Choquequirao, believed to be the lost city of the Incas in Peru. It is the first recorded exploration of the ancient city; it is claimed that until he went there no one had visited the place for the last 400 years. At any rate, it seems to be an interesting place. To get there required a week's hard travel from Cuzco, the ancient capital of the Inca empire. Choquequirao lies at an elevation of about 13,000 feet. Dr. Bingham believes that the place was a fort built by the Incas to protect themselves against attacks of the Amazon Indians. He found traces of fortifications and many relics. The buildings are made, not of the finely wrought stone of the palaces in Cuzco, but of roughly hewn stones cemented together, and the interior of some places are plastered. The old waterworks remain, and several reservoirs are in good condition. The archaeological possibilities of South America give rich promise for the daring and determined explorer.

HATCHING FISH EGGS.

(New York Sun.)

The Aquarium received lately from the United States Fisheries Bureau 5,000,000 white perch eggs—the eggs of this species are very small—which have been placed in hatching jars in the Aquarium's model fish hatchery.

The period of incubation of fish eggs depends largely on the temperature of the water in which they are spawned or placed. Whitefish eggs in water of a temperature of 53 degrees would hatch out in about three days; in water of a temperature of 52 degrees, that being about the present temperature of the Croton water as it flows into the Aquarium's tanks, whitefish eggs require for hatching a period of from fifteen to twenty days.

The susceptibility of fish eggs to temperature makes it possible to do things with them that could not be done otherwise. In such a hatchery, as the Aquarium, for instance, with its limited space, it should be desirable to expedite the hatching of a batch of eggs to make room in jars or troughs for other eggs, this can be done by the simple expedient of raising the temperature of the water.

When the eggs are in the hatchery water is all the time kept running into the jars or troughs and running off, in constant circulation, to give the eggs the best possible conditions. It is not a comparatively brief time without injury. By shutting off the inflow of new water the temperature of the standing water in which the eggs would then remain would be in an hour or two perceptibly raised by the warmth of the surrounding air in the building; and by the increase of warmth in the water the hatching of the eggs would be accelerated. When little fishes are about ready to come out a hatching that might have been extended a week can be by this means completed in a day.

HOW FRICK GOT A START.

(Pittsburgh Dispatch.)

The published statement that H. C. Frick has paid $350,000 for the famous portrait of Christina of Norway, by Hans Holbein, reminds oldtimers here of how Frick's love for art was at one time almost his undoing.

Frick was a young clerk in the Connelville coke region when he saw what he considered an excellent chance for investment in coal lands. But he had no money. He wrote to Thomas Mellon, then one of the biggest bankers in the State, asking for a loan of $25,000.

The application was so "nervy" that it interested Mellon and he decided to look into the matter. He sent a trusted man to the coke region to look over Frick, who was keeping a bachelor's apartment in a one-story clapboard shack. The agent found the place scrupulously clean, and the walls of Frick's room hung with pictures and prints, some of which he had made himself. He came back and reported that the youngster was evidently "frittering his time away" making pictures.

Banker Mellon then sent J. B. Corey, of Pittsburgh, to look young Frick up. Corey reported that he didn't think the very young man was making enough pictures "to hurt." Mellon made the loan, and gave Frick his start in the world.

CREEK DOCTORS.

Old Women Famous For Their Skill In Profession.

BULLETS EXTRACTED BY THE AID OF HOLLOW REEDS.

PART OF FOUR DAYS BEGINS ALL TREATMENTS.

PATIENTS ARE KEPT ALOOF.

Among the Creek Indians certain old women are renowned for their skill in the treatment of gunshot wounds. One of these, a woman named Chitto Harjo, or Crazy Snake, sought one of them after he was shot in the leg in the fight with officers at his home near Pinedale. The knowledge of surgery and medicine possessed by these old women is of the most primitive kind. It came down through generations, and much of tribal myth and superstition enters into their practice. They never attempt amputations, and rely mostly upon poultices of herbs and animal products. One of these old Creek women doctors, Simahoya, said to be nearly 100 years old, was found recently at a full-blown Creek Indian Baptist church northeast of here, where the congregation had assembled Saturday to be in time for the service on Sunday. She was a small, thin, old woman, with long, straight hair hung down her back, her face was wrinkled and thin, and her body emaciated. Her head seemed to be kept in a high, pointed position, and her eyes sparkled with curiosity at sight of the armed white men. She accepted with evident pleasure a gift of pipe tobacco which she used securely in the corner of her apron, and offered no objection when a man with a kodak took her picture.

The methods of these women doctors are said to be similar to those of the Indian men doctors, of whom more is known. The Creek Indian doctor forbids any person, even the father or mother, to touch his patient, for whom he becomes both physician and nurse, staying beside him night and day. A young man or woman, unmarried, may come within speaking distance to inquire about the patient's health. Regardless of where the wound is inflicted, the patient is required to fast four days, the doctor joining in the fast. In the next four days the patient is allowed to take light nourishment, such as "sorky," a kind of boiled corn. Then follows soup, containing wild meat, such as quail and squirrel.

The wound is dressed twice each day and once each night. It is probed with wing feathers of the horned owl. These feathers are soft and velvety and give less pain than a rubber or steel probe. The feathers are used also in washing the wound and in applying the medicine. After about eight days young, unmarried people are allowed to call on the patient.

The removal of a bullet from a man's body without the use of a knife is not beyond the skill of these Indian doctors. The doctor examines the wound to determine the size of the opening, and takes from his collection of hollow reeds one that fits the wound. The end of the reed that is inserted into the wound has been hollowed evenly and smoothly. Little by little the reed is inserted under the bullet, the doctor holding his ear close to the end of the reed to hear the impact. The hollow end of the reed is gradually placed over the bullet. With the other end of the reed in his mouth the Indian doctor by suction draws the bullet out. The bullet is then withdrawn from the wound. After the bullet has been extracted the old doctor returns to his owl feathers and uses no other instrument.

STUDENTS EAT HAY.

[Omaha Dispatch to New York Press.] Omaha goes the vegetable food faddist one better and furnishes the proof that a man can live on hay and enjoy the best of health. There are college men in town to prove the assertion. Creighton University is one of the foremost schools in the country. It is broad-based, and while it is under the direction of the church, a majority of the student body is composed of men of various religious beliefs. There are clubs galore, and among them is known as the "Alfalfa Hay Club." From the name one might infer that the members are agriculturists.

The Creighton "Alfalfa Club" numbers twenty-three, and one of the purposes of the organization is to demonstrate the importance that alfalfa is a human food product, as well as food for animals. The young men are working in the interest of science, and at the same time they are furnishing daily evidence that grass is palatable when properly treated.

The alfalfa they use comes from the mill, where it has been selected, care having been taken to remove all the seeds and foreign substances. Then the alfalfa is cut into small pieces, and the tender leaves, with a small portion of the upper parts of the stalk, are ground together and run through a bolting machine that turns out a meal almost as fine as flour, having a rich brown color. The meal is bleached until it has a creamy hue. This done, it is ready to go to the culinary department of the college club, where it is cooked into many palatable articles of food.

GUMBO DOWN SOUTH.

(New York Press.)

Up here in the North we don't know what gumbo is, and it is cooked in about as good a way as to eat. In the unbridled dictionaries it is found in company with gumbo. Botanists call it hirsutus esculentus or abiesculentus. The African slaves who are thought to have first introduced it to the Southern States called it plain "okra." Like the pea, the bean and catnip, it is a pod-bearing, and the diminutive peas look something like duckholes. Okra grows on a plant from three to six feet high; and the fruit from two to six inches in size; is a sort of elongated, cylindrical cone with a very fleshy, green, bumpy skin. The fruit is not like mulligatawny, but rosy. If you want the real gumbo soup you will have to go way down South and get a black nigger to make it for you out of the freshly grown vegetable, chicken juice, tender shreds of the fowl, rice and seasoned to be a dream. Oh, Lord!

S.S.S. CURES
OLD SORES

If an old sore existed simply because the flesh was diseased at that particular spot, it would be an easy matter to say that some very direct way to the place that would kill the germ; or the diseased flesh might be removed by a surgical operation and a cure effected. But the very fact that old sores resist every form of local or external treatment, and even return after being cut away, shows that back of them is a morbid cause which must be removed before a cure can result. Just as long as the pollution continues in the blood, the ulcer remains in an open condition for deposit of impurities which the circulation throws off. S.S.S. cures Old Sores by purifying the blood. It removes every trace of impurity and taint from the circulation, and thus completely does away with the cause. When S.S.S. has cleansed the blood, the sores begin to heal, and it is not a surface cure, but the healing process begins at the bottom; soon the discharge ceases, the inflammation leaves, and the place fills in with firm, healthy flesh. Under the purifying and tonic effects of S.S.S. the system is built up, and those whose health has been impaired by the drain and worry of an old sore will be doubly benefited by its use. South America An Eldorado For American Dentists.

NATIVE DOCTORS' JEALOUSY MAY END GOOD TIMES.

FABULOUS PAY FOR MAKING CRUDE FALSE TEETH.

FAT CHARGES FOR PULLING.

Brazil is suffering from an American invasion. It is not, however, a commercial invasion, and it has nothing to do with either trust-promoting or diplomacy.

The invaders, in truth, have no capital other than their hands, and are filled with shiny instruments, and their strong right arms. They are American dentists, and so numerous have they become and so strong has grown their competition that the native molar extractors have set out to work their downfall—with very fair prospects, it may be mentioned, of success, says the Baltimore Sun.

There is a law in Brazil providing that all dentists and physicians of foreign birth who desire to practice their professions in the land must first pass rigid examinations in the Portuguese language at either the medical college of Bahia or the university at Rio de Janeiro.

These examinations, which include two or three languages and a number of other branches seldom found in a medical or even an ordinary collegiate curriculum, are so severe that few foreigners can hope to pass them without several years of preparation.

Hitherto this law has been rather a dead letter, for the need of good dentists and doctors was felt and the people were not very particular as to where they came from. But now, alarmed by the increase in the number of jawbreakers and bone-setters from the United States, the natives have applied to the Government for relief, and the law is to be enforced.

In case it is enforced to the letter most of the American dentists in the country—and there are far more American dentists than physicians—will either have to give up their practice, or leave for other lands.

The art of dentistry is more advanced in Uncle Sam's domain than in any other country on earth, and tooth pullers with diplomas from American colleges have always been welcomed abroad. All newspaper readers remember Dr. Evans, the famous American dentist, who set up shop in Paris forty years ago and amassed a great fortune by the practice of his profession.

Other American dentists have also succeeded well in France, and still others have made fortunes in Russia, the Mediterranean countries and parts of the Far East.

But South and Central America and the West Indies have always been their main stamping grounds. In Europe an American dentist to succeed has been forced to meet in fair competition with vanishing completely practitioners but little less skillful than himself. But south of latitude 30 he has had only to pull teeth.

If he did the work rapidly he was looked upon as a master. And if he made false teeth at all—no matter how crude they might be—he was sure of a large and steady income. Until recently the native dentists were utterly unable to undertake what the profession denominates "crown and bridge work."

Traveled In State.

It was the custom for the American dentist (whose day is now passing in the hands of the American countrymen as well as in Brazil) to establish headquarters in one of the larger cities. There he would engage a suite of rooms at a leading hotel and hang out his sign.

Usually, to make a good "front," he hired a few native assistants, and dental students, couriers, footmen and interpreters. But inasmuch as it is possible to hire a good interpreter in many of the larger cities, and a week and a native footman for $2.50, it will be seen that the cost of all of this display is not very small.

After settling down the American would advertise in all of the local papers and send circulars, handsomely engraved, to the leading cities. And then he would wait for business—and it was seldom that he had to wait long. He would have a steady stream of patients for whom he would pull teeth for $1.00 a pull. Then, one day, the alcalde's wife would call at his studio, her face swayed by a long, thin, white, bony, and she would say: "I want you to pull my teeth."

Very often these Yankee knights of the forceps traveled in pairs. One would attend to the extracting end of the business, and the other would look after the making of false teeth and the filling of hollow ones.

After the work was regulated by the apparent prosperity of their patients, and very often they would make enormous sums. It was not uncommon to charge $200 gold for a set of false teeth, and quite the usual thing to ask $10 apiece for extracting.

No Trouble To Bet Money.

Not long ago the writer met in Kingston, Jamaica, an American who had been in the island for some time, and a year, with rent, wages of assistants and all expenses paid. And he labored but two days a week, too, for his living. He was a tall, thin man, and he was compelled to take things easy. Malaria, in fact, finally drove him back to his native land, where he was paid $25,000 gold for a set of false teeth, and he was paid $25,000 gold for a set of false teeth, and he was paid $25,000 gold for a set of false teeth.

A dozen years ago two Yankees from Indiana made a tour of the Central American coast towns of six months of the year. They would move in gorgeous state, with a train of servants and a band of music and rode up and down the coast, and they were like the men of a minstrel show.

Patients From The Jungle.

In places where there were no native dentists the coming of the Americans was eagerly awaited, and swollen-jawed sufferers came from town from plantations miles distant. And in every case they found that relief was exceedingly expensive.

There were pressing engagements, explained the Americans, to be filled elsewhere. The "job" would be a long one. Of course, if the senior or senior insisted—

"It was too easy," said an old-timer the other day. "It was like throwing babies overboard."

As a rule these touring dentists

Kurtzmann
Pianos

Have for sixty years set the standard for lasting quality at a moderate cost.

By a careful consideration of operating expenses, the makers of the Kurtzmann Piano have been able to make every dollar spent go into the construction of the instrument itself.

That their efforts in this line have been successful is best proven by the fact that, in Kentucky alone, thousands of satisfied purchasers stand ready to recommend them, and over six hundred Kurtzmanns are in use in teachers' studios, academies, schools, etc. There is not a residence section of Louisville without at least from one to ten of these beautiful instruments.

"KURTZMANN" has become a household word, and the increasing demand for the Kurtzmann Piano proves beyond a doubt that the discriminating public is always quick to give its hearty approval to the highest merit.

We have just received a choice selection of these pianos for our spring business, and we offer the intending purchaser the opportunity for a wide variety of choice.

made Kingston, or Panama, or Rio de Janeiro, or Santos, and then back to Bahia and on to Para, Cayenne, Para, or to Georgetown, the Venezuelan towns, Cartagena and the isthmus, and so down the west coast to Lima. Then they would penetrate the interior, visiting all of the towns in the Andes and sending to headquarters huge postal drafts and bills of exchange from each.

Very frequently it happened that a team of American dentists engaged in the business of some sort as a side line. Many of them were gentlemen adventurers, pure and simple, whose knowledge of scientific dentistry, if the truth must be told, was rather limited, and often when business was dull they joined one of the revolutionary bands always prowling about the vicinity of the isthmus.

At the beginning of the Yucatan revolt in Colombia a dozen years ago a Georgian named Fry undertook to bring a schoonerload of arms and ammunition from Bogota, in British Honduras. He succeeded in sneaking the cargo away, and though pursued by a British gunboat managed to reach the Leeward Islands in safety.

But there he fell in with one of the condemned ocean tugs that the Colombian Government had purchased for use as cruisers. In the night that ensued things went against the filibuster until the tug's engines broke down.

"Dentistry" On the Seas.

Then, abandoning his own craft for the moment, he and his crew entered their ship's boats, bodily rowed up to the side of the "cruiser" and boarded and captured her in a hand-to-hand struggle, with a loss of but three men. But it was all for naught, for in the night there came a hurricane, which wrecked both boats upon the coral reefs and came near drowning all hands.

Freely afterward reappeared in Haiti, where it is said he became a friend of Killik. He has not been in evidence, however, for six years, and it is supposed that he is somewhere reached a safe end.

Another American—who claimed, however, to be a French-Canadian by birth—was once captured during a revolution in Guatemala and sentenced to be shot. But fortunately for him one of the Guatemalan generals was seized by an unexpected toothache.

All other remedies failing, the American, who was formerly a well-known practitioner as a doctor, was summoned. He extracted the offending tooth with no other instruments than his marvelously strong right thumb and forefinger.

goats sleep in the same room with the family at night.

In the little towns and villages where goat dairies are maintained, the milk of the animals is peddled daily from door to door.

The Mexicans of the Rio Grande border are noted for their longevity but whether this condition comes from drinking goat milk and having the animals constantly around them is a matter that has not been scientifically established.

BRICKS OF ANT-HILL SAND.

(London Globe.)

A recent traveler in Central Africa describes an interesting use of the soil of ant hills. It appears that it makes excellent bricks of which houses are built. The natives tread it with water into a dough-like substance, which is shaped in rough wooden molds. It is then dried in the sun, and afterward baked in native kilns. The same substance is found to make excellent tennis courts. It is mixed with water into a thick paste, spread on the ground and smoothed over with the hands. The same traveler tells us how the natives in the neighborhood of Lake Nyassa esteem a species of fly as an excellent article of diet. It is known as the "kung" and appears to be peculiar to the lake. At certain seasons of the year they appear in enormous numbers, and are sometimes blown in myriads over the land. If this happens near a village the natives come out and eagerly gather them up. They make them into what they consider a delicious confection.
